ROBERT G. MONTGOMERY, AND FELLOWS.

REPORT OF THE COUNTY SURVEYOR FOR THE NORTH DISTRICT.

SUMMER ASSIZES, 1886.

MR. FOREMAN AND GENTLEMEN,

The Works now coming before you have nothing in them which I need specially call your attention to. The competition at last Sessions was even more than usual, and consequently the works were taken at considerably reduced prices.

Your order as to the County House, at last Assizes, has been carried out.

I applied to the Board of Prisons, as directed by the last Grand Jury, for payment of the Caretaker of the Waterworks, while it was in their hands, and they have refused compliance.

The work recommended by the resolution of the Grand Jury, at last Assizes, for the bridge at Cooladerry, in North Raphoe, has been varied at Sessions and is now contracted for. You have already been informed as to my views upon this matter, which remain unchanged, and it is not my intention to add anything further, except you call upon me to do so.

The absence of any considerable rainfall for months past has produced the natural effect of temporarily loosening the metal, and leaving the surface of the roads in several places rough.

Some important statistics as to County expenditure, so far as affecting Public Works, have reached me from authentic sources, and from which the following must be of interest to you.

I treat North Donegal as I do the similar divisions of other Counties, as a separate County.

North Donegal pays for the construction and maintenance of its Public Works, 2s 2d·16 in the £ upon its valuation, while the average for Ulster is 1s 1d·87 in the £.

The actual maintenance, however, of the roads in North Donegal is much less than in most of the other Counties, while it is 20 per cent. below the average for Ulster.

The mileage of roads placed on the County has increased from 1872 up to 1886, while the cost of their maintenance has steadily decreased from £11·0 per mile in 1872, to £8·7 per mile in 1885, being a decrease of over 20 per cent., while their permanent strength and condition have improved.

At the same time, that the physical features and facilities for working the large area of North Donegal are very greatly adverse to it, as compared with the other Counties, cost of Staff and supervision in it is only £5·19 per cent., which is somewhat below the average for all Ulster.

I am, Mr. Foreman and Gentlemen,

WILLIAM HARTE, County Surveyor.

REPORT OF THE COUNTY SURVEYOR FOR THE SOUTH DISTRICT.

SUMMER ASSIZES, 1886.

MR. FOREMAN AND GENTLEMEN,

I have nothing special to bring under your notice with reference to the Continuing Contracts, or Ordinary Works now being carried out, or to come before you for consideration at the present Assizes.

The nine Fishery Piers and Boat Slips round the Coast, from Bunatruhan on the south, to Arranmore Island on the north, are sound and intact since my last Report.

No additional works have been yet carried out at Bunatruhan, Ballysaggart, Poolhurrin, Teelin, Burton Port or Rannagh, or Arranmore Island.

With regard to the latter Pier, I beg leave to lay before the Grand Jury a letter from the Board of Works, received on the 19th of last May, accompanied by a Report from Mr. Haire, their Inspecting Engineer.

It will be seen from the Board's letter that there are no funds at present available for further works.

Having requested the Grand Jury, at last Assizes, to allow me to hand over to the Piers' Committee, the accounts and balances in connection with the Toll Piers, I have now to state that I hope to do so at the present Assizes, when I shall possibly meet all the members. Hitherto this has not been practicable.

I annex a statement of the Account up to the present time.

I have the honour to be,

Your Obedient Servant,

F. GAHAN, County Surveyor.
