Early forms of Local Government Cineálacha luatha Rialtais Áitiúil

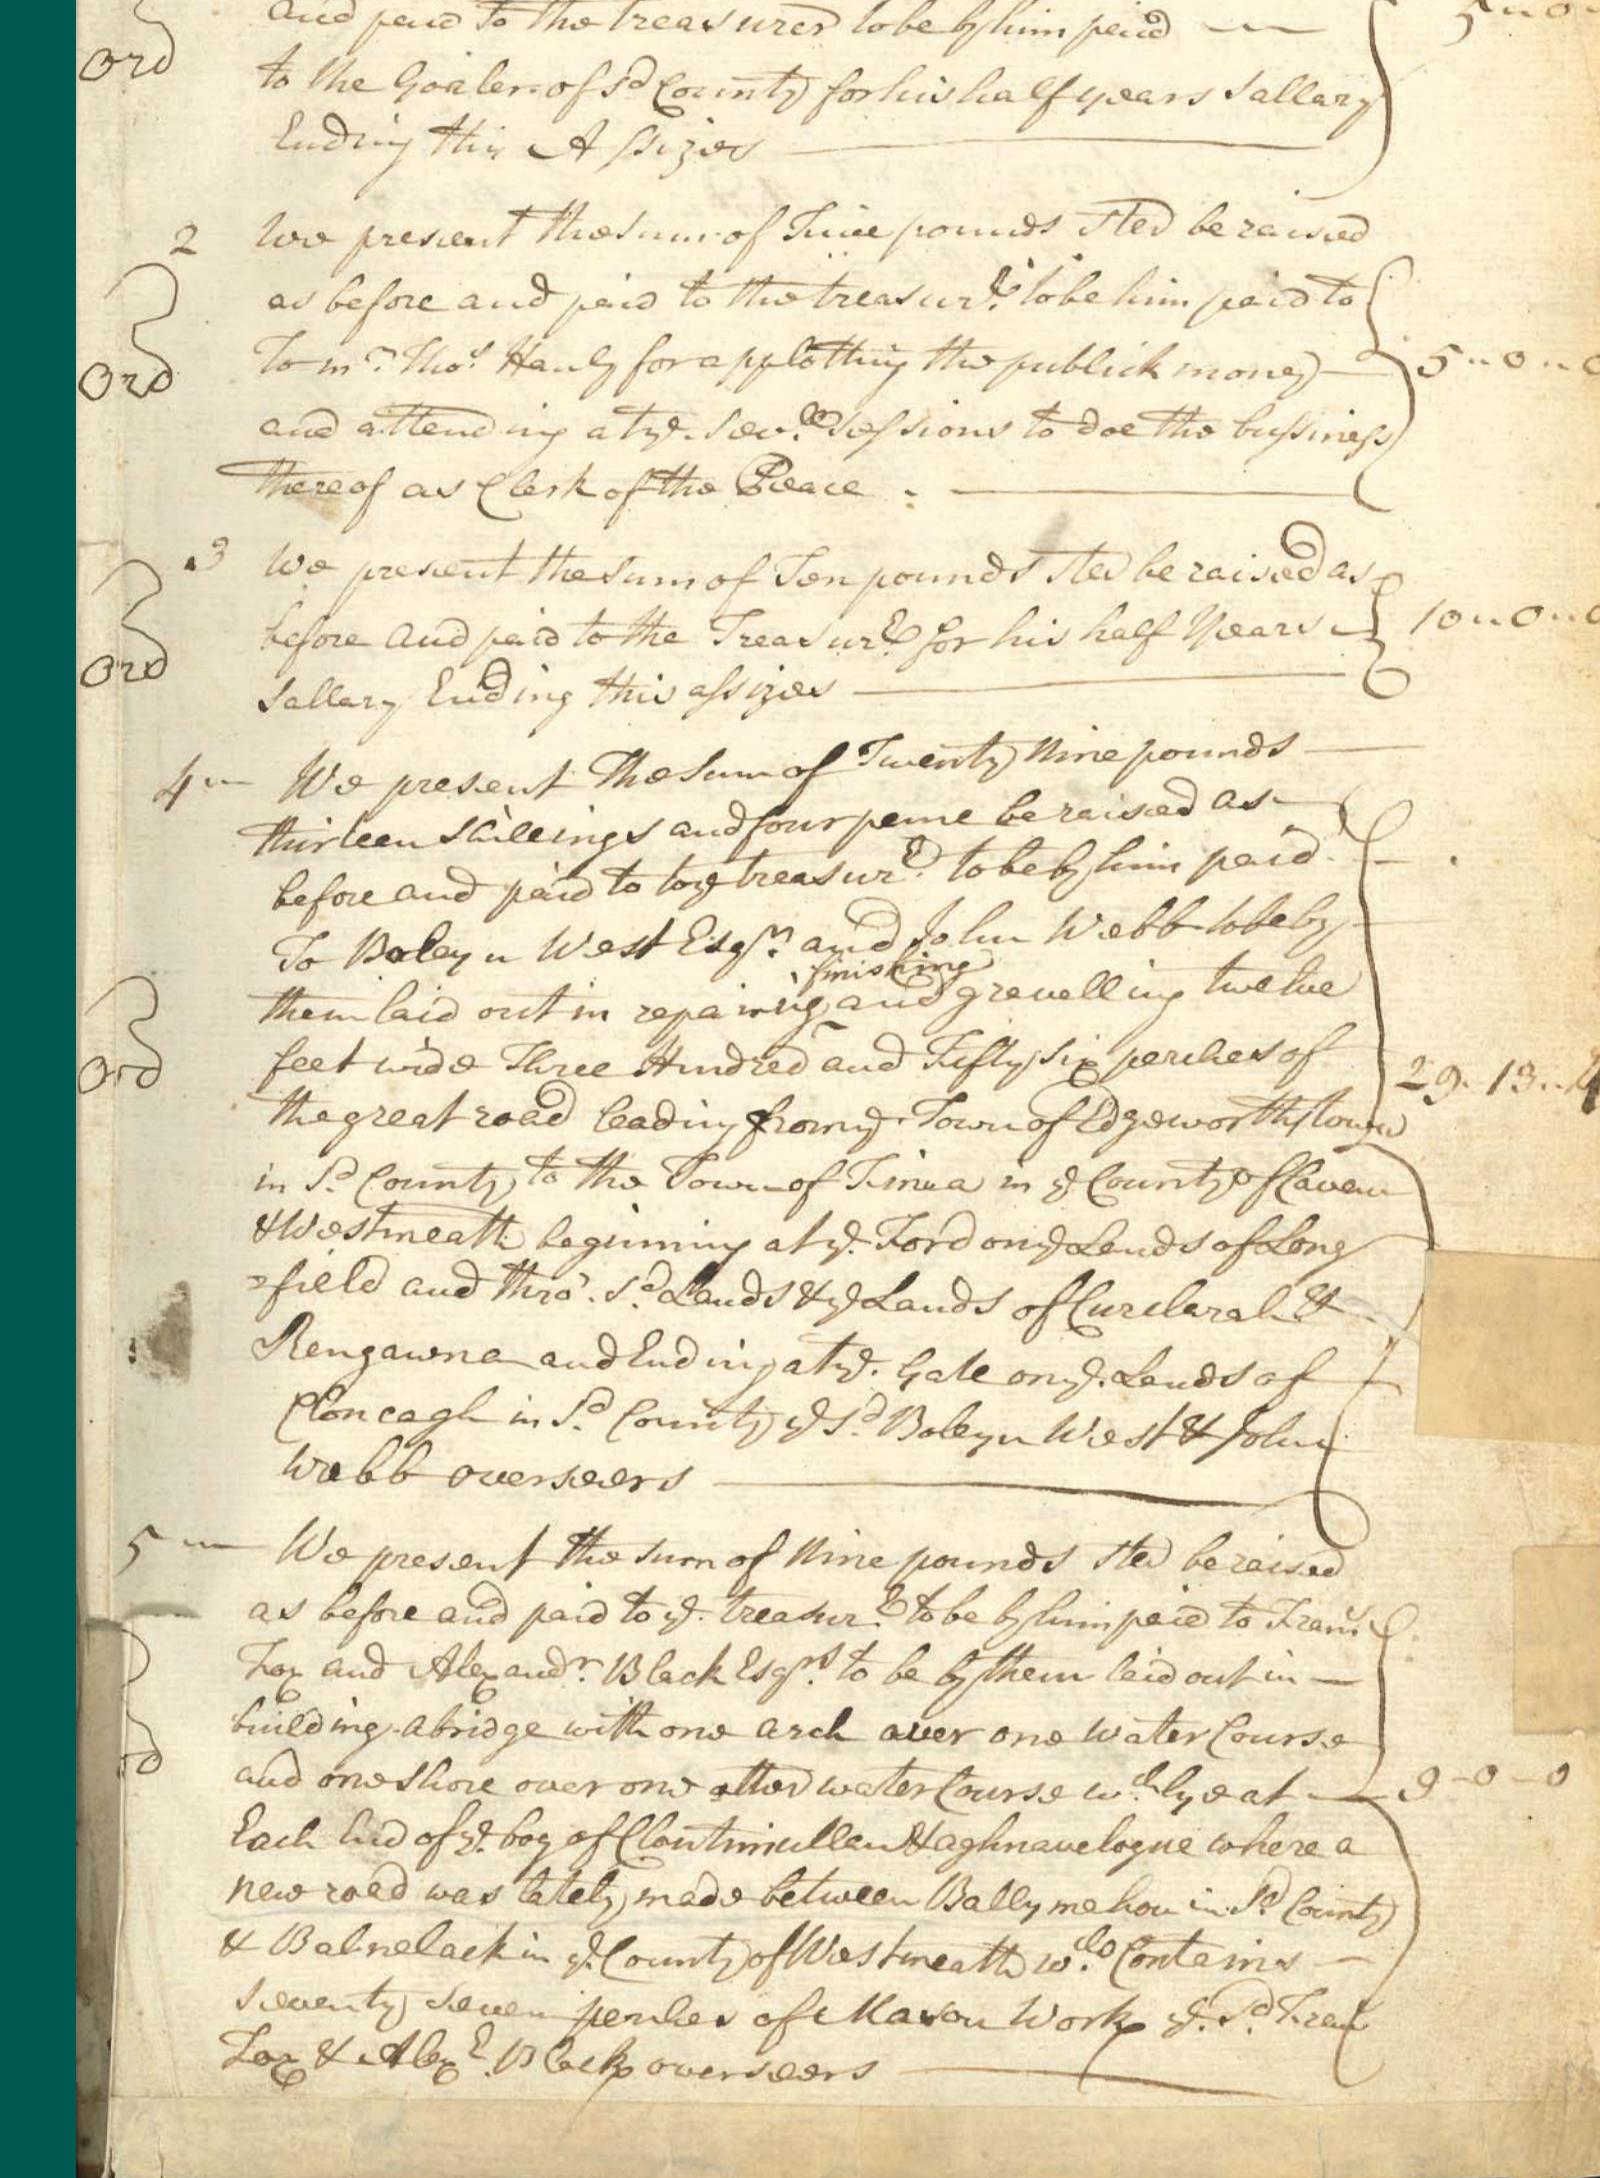

The earliest form of local government began after the arrival of the Anglo-Normans in the 12th century. These were borough corporations, granted to certain cities and towns, generally by royal charter. From 1828 onwards, municipal government was partially democratised with the establishment of town commissions in many places.

Grand Juries

Local government at county level developed with the expansion of the functions of the grand jury. Its members were landowners, summoned by the high sheriff twice yearly – Lent and summer. Its role was to decide which cases were referred to the assize courts. Later, it was granted authority to collect rates and approve various works, such as road and bridge repairs, and the building and maintenance of courthouses and county gaols.

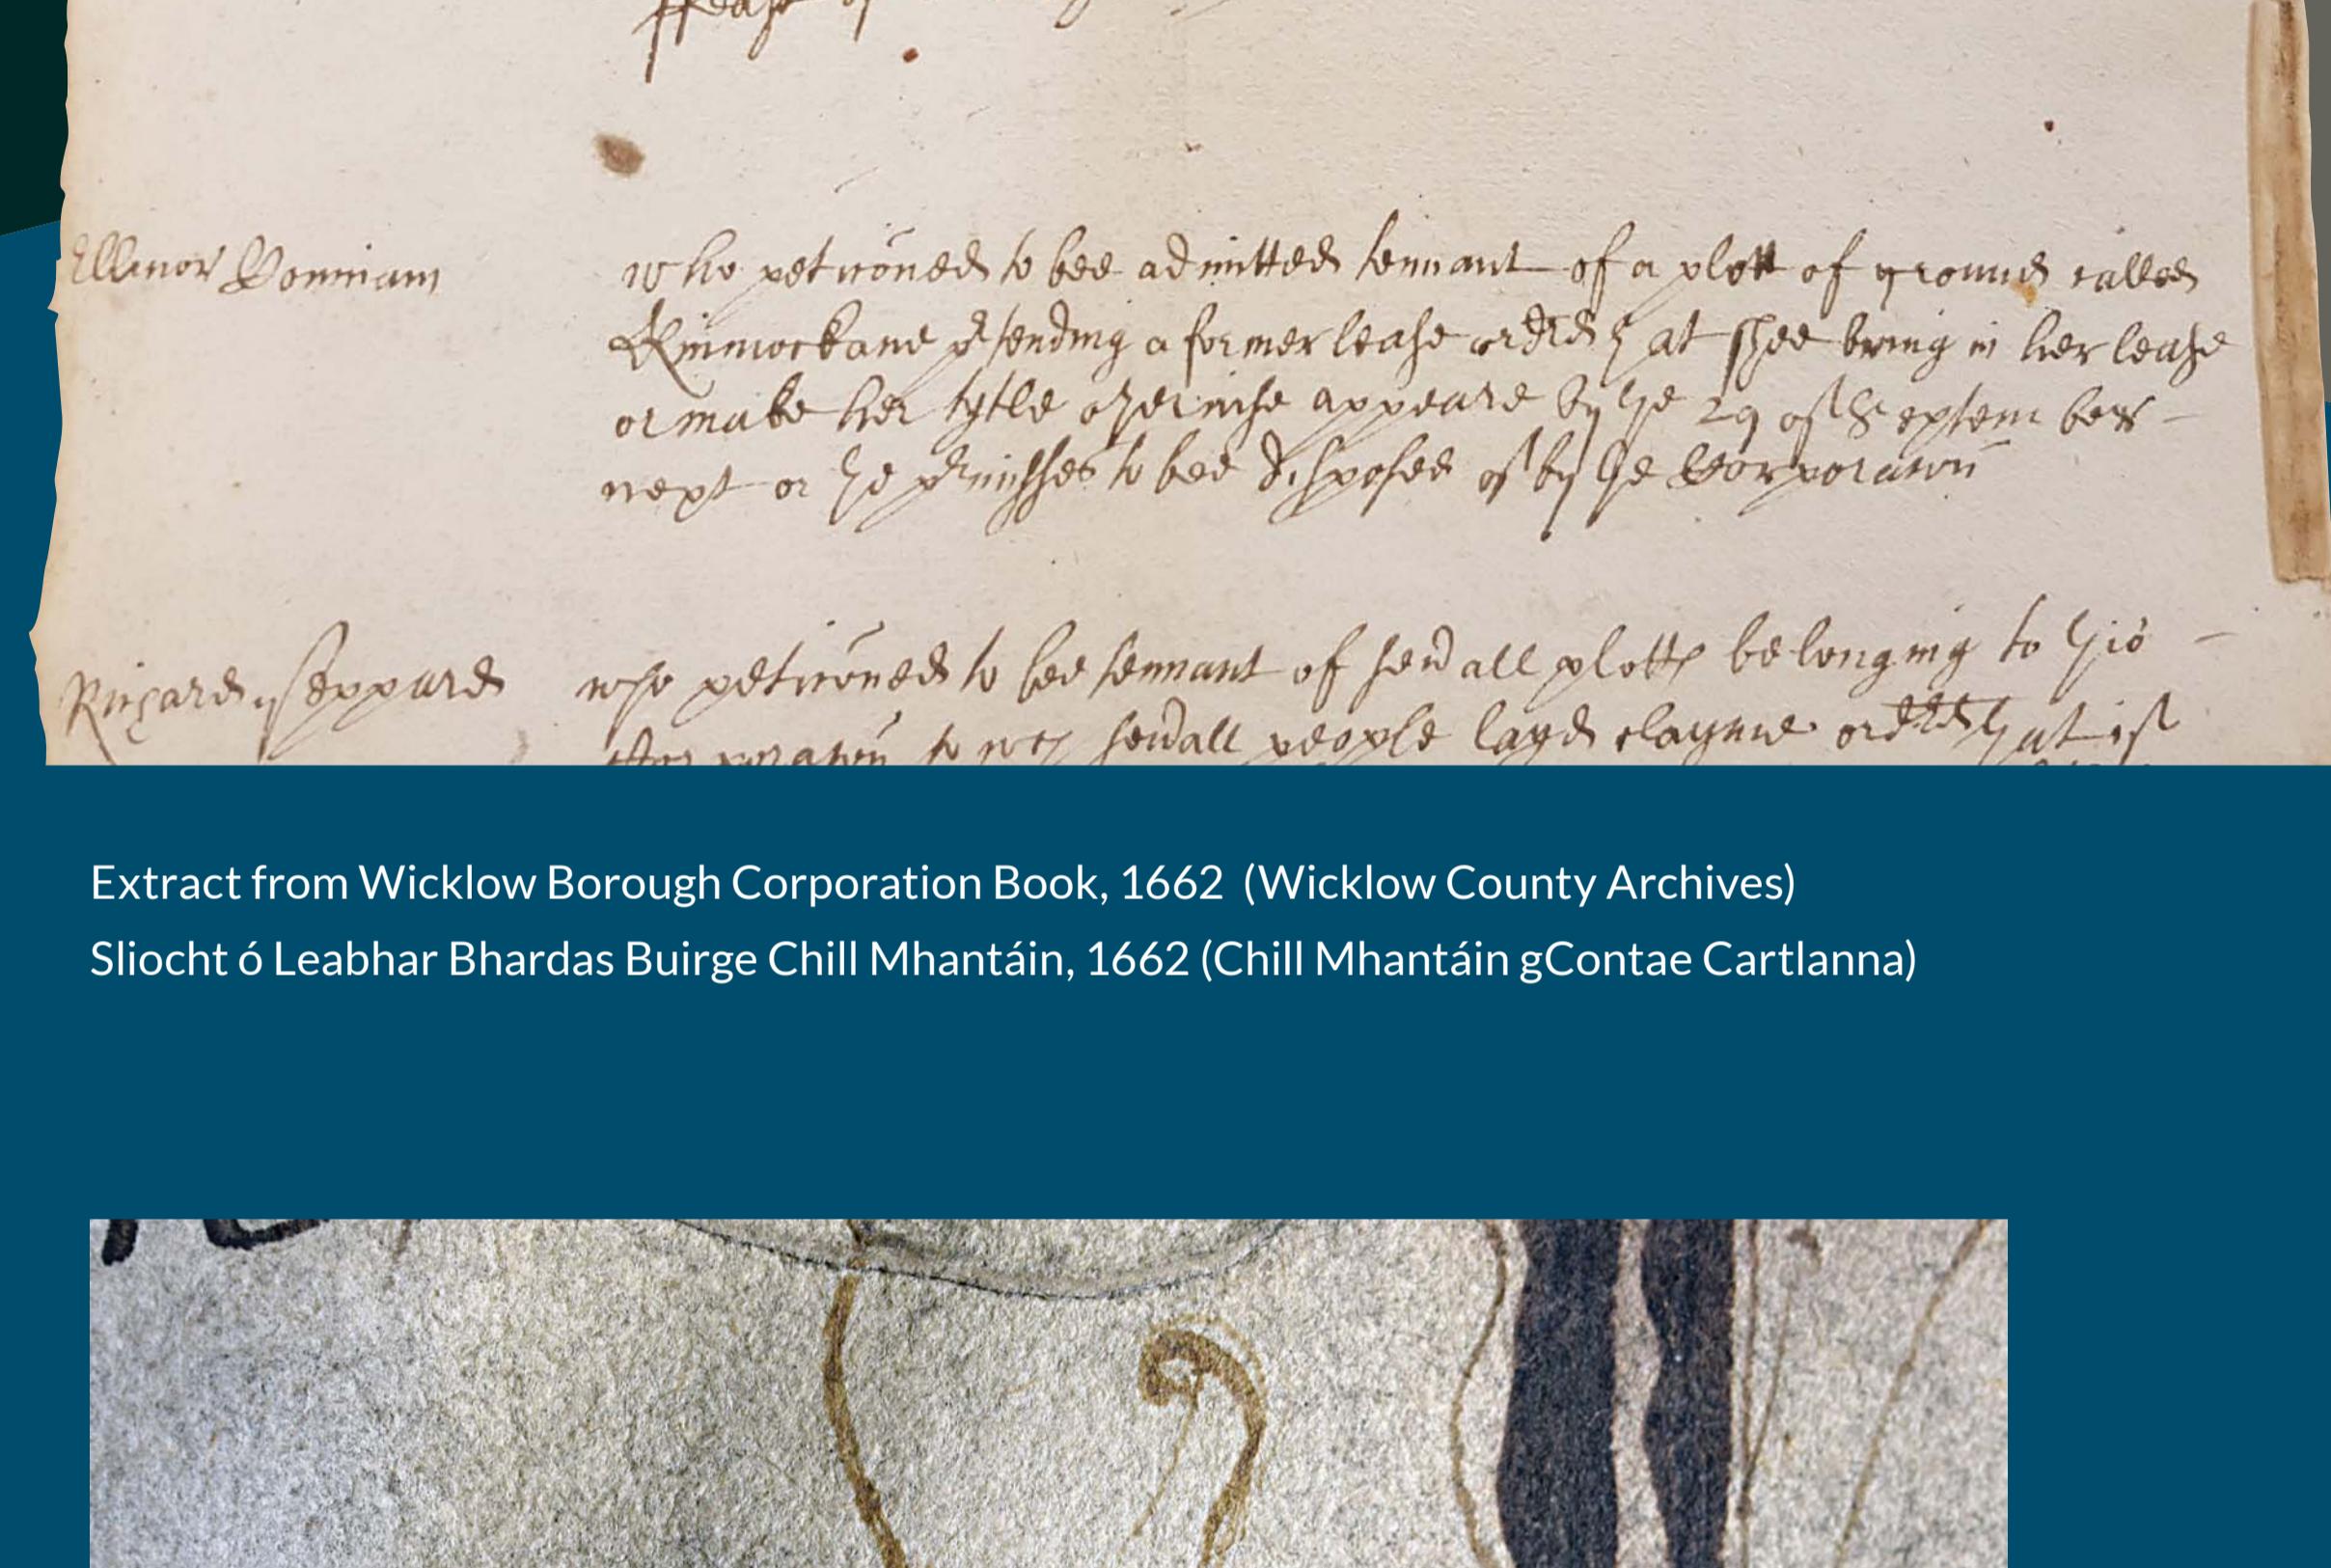

Poor Law Guardians

Boards of poor law guardians were established under the Poor Relief (Ireland) Act 1838. There were eventually 163 Poor Law Unions based around market towns throughout Ireland. They were responsible for the operation of the system that included the workhouses and other relief work. Some guardians were elected by rate-payers, making the system partly democratic. Significantly, women could serve as guardians from 1896.

Thosaigh an cineál is luaithe rialtais áitiúil i ndiaidh theacht na nAnglo-Normannach sa 12ú haois. Bardais bhuirge a bhí iontu sin, a thugtaí do chathracha agus do bhailte airíthe, le cairteacha rioga de ghnáth. Ó 1828 i leith, bhí an rialtas bardasach daonlathaithe i bpáirt le bunú coimisiún baile ina lán áiteanna.

Ard-Ghiúréithe

Forbraónn rialtas áitiúil ar an leibhéal contae le meadú ar fheidhmeanna an ard-ghiúré. Tiarnaí talún ba iad a bhaill, ar a scairteadh an tsirriam dhá uair sa bhliain – Ag an gCarthas agus sa samhradh. Ba é a ról na casanna a bhí le cur le hatreorú chuig na cíurteanna seisíuin a chinneadh. Níos déanaí, tugadh údarás dó chun rátaí a bhailí agus oibreacála éagsúla a cheadú, amhail deisiúchán bhóithre agus droichead, agus tógáil agus cothabháil tithe cíurte agus príosún contae.

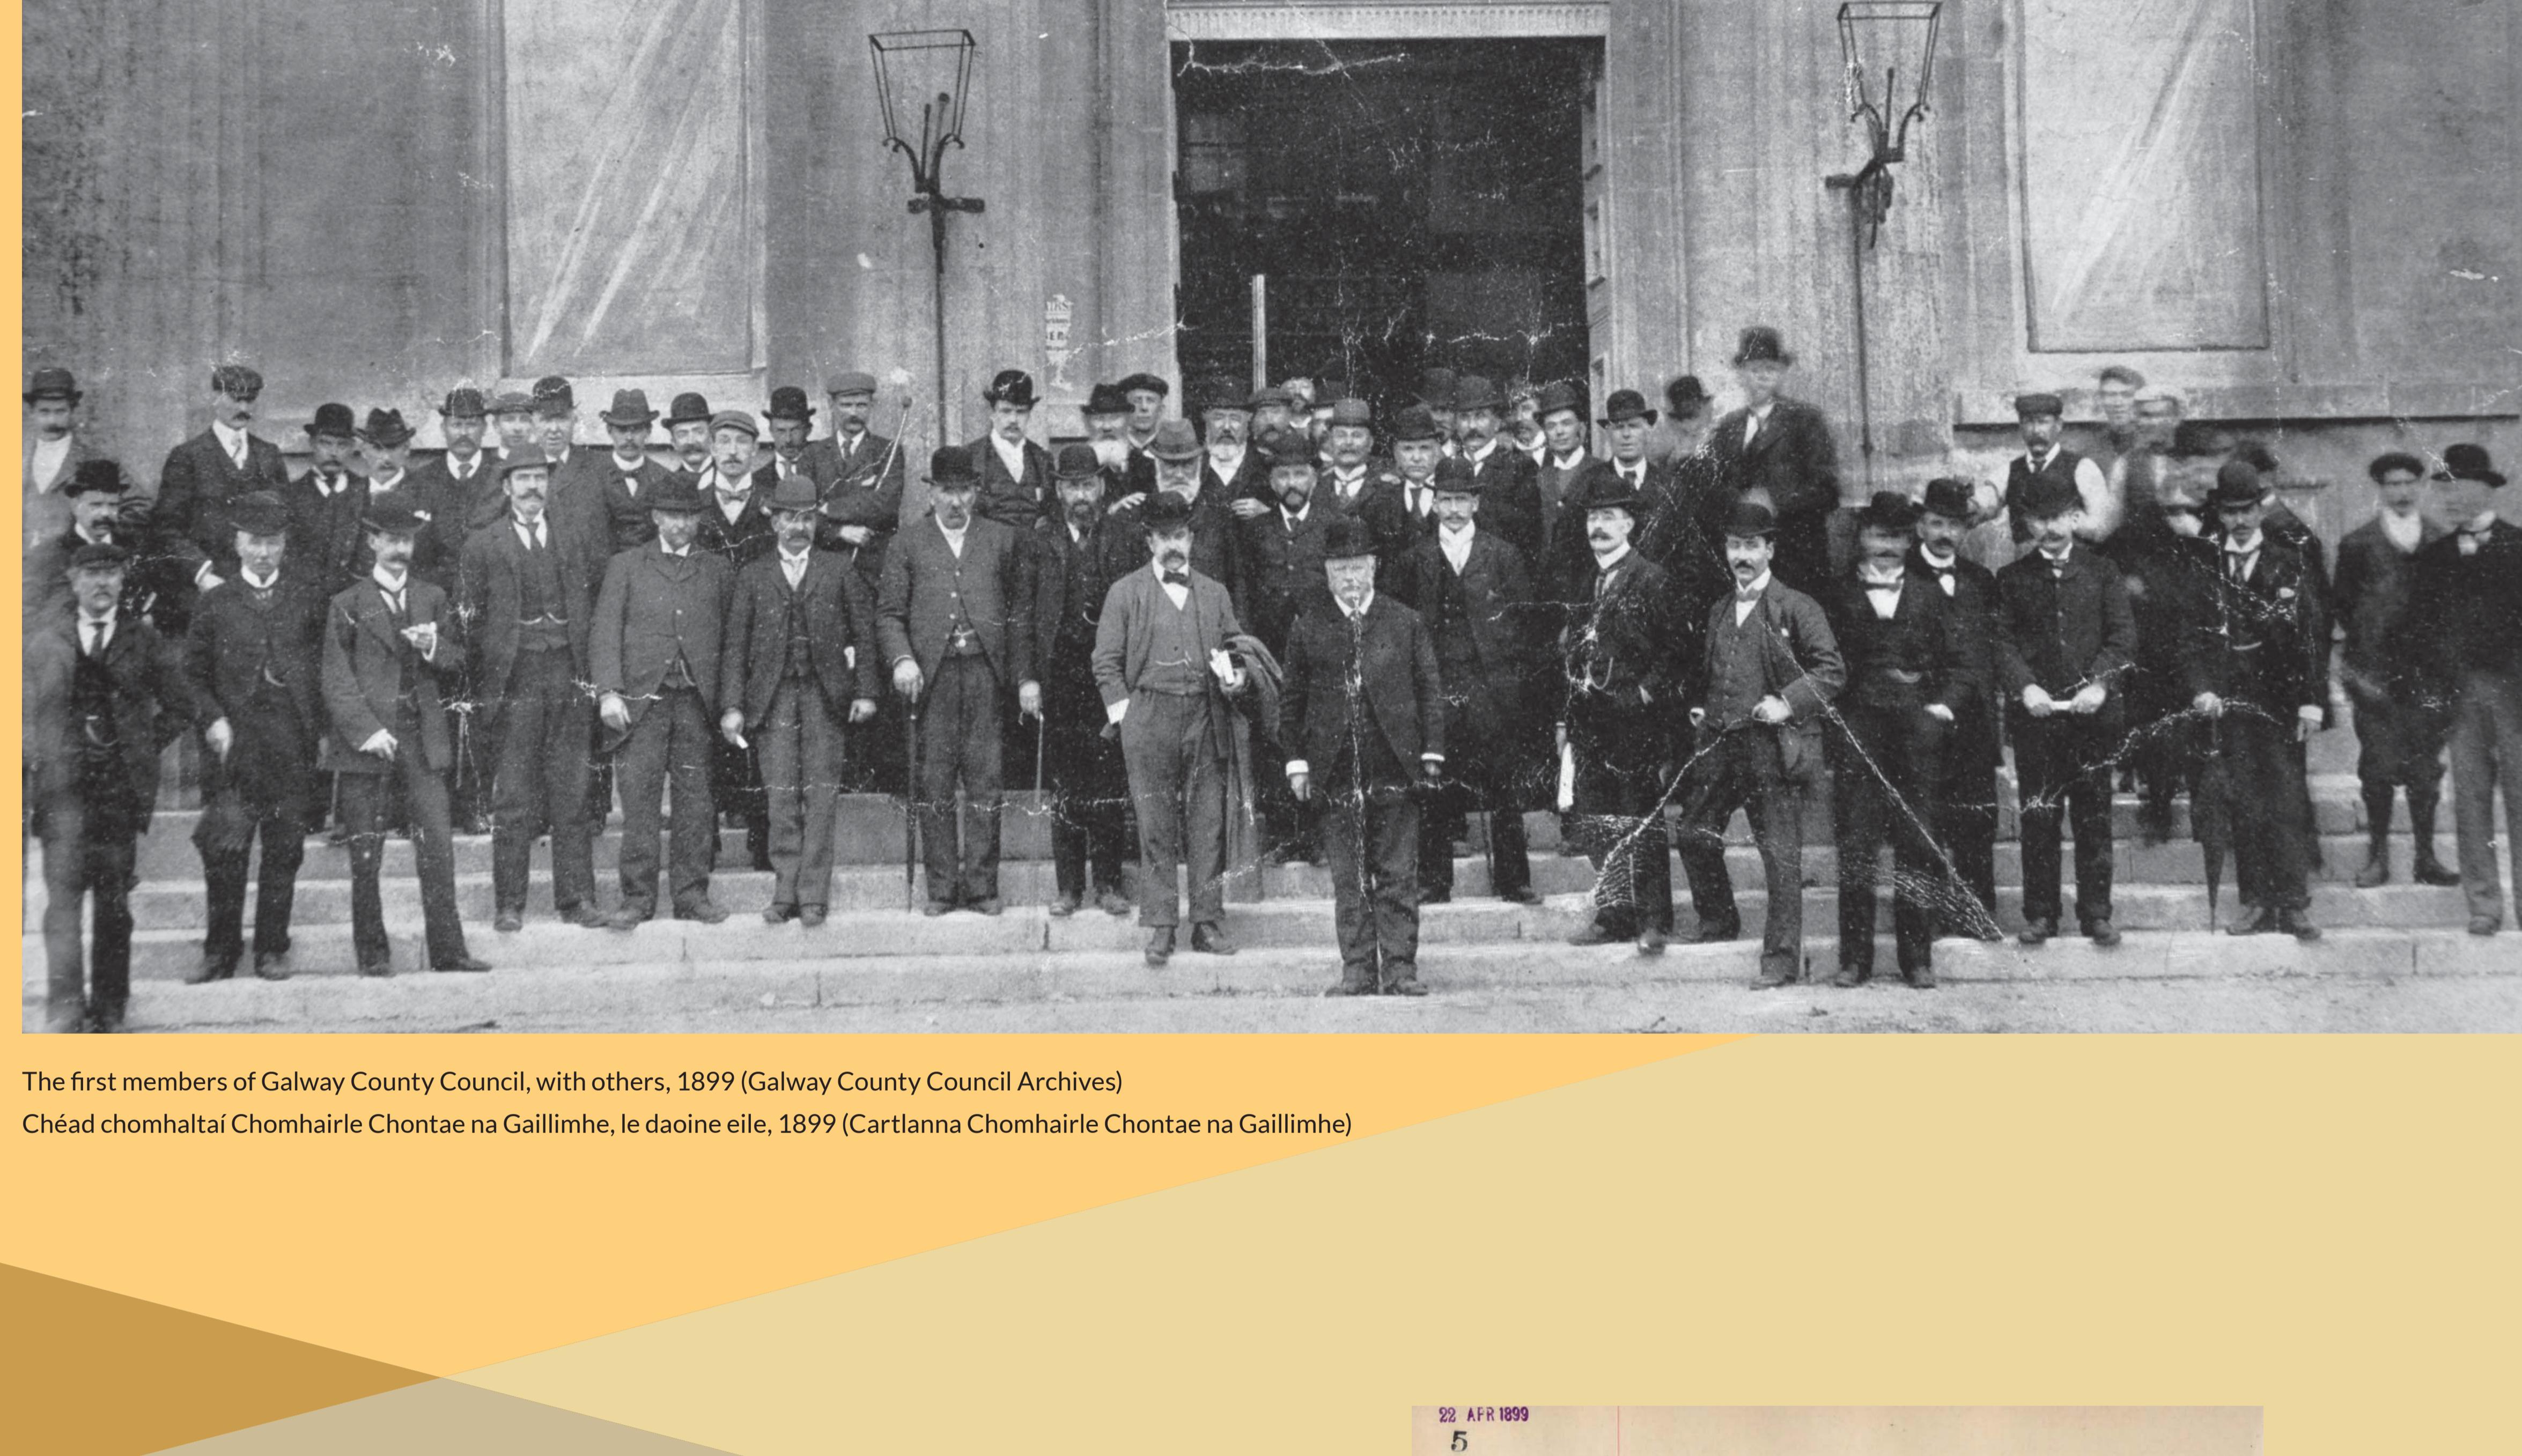

Bardaigh Dhlí na mBocht

Bunaíodh boird bhardaigh dhlí na mbocht faoin Poor Relief (Ireland) Act 1838. De réir a chéile bhí 163 Aontas Dhlí na mBocht bunaithe thart ar bhailte margaidh ar fud na hÉireann. Bhí siad freagach as oibriú an chórais ina raibh tithe na mbocht agus obair faoisimh eile. Thoghfadh iocóiri rátai roinnt bardach, rud a rinne an córas daonlathach i bpáirt. Go suntasach, d'fhéadadh mná fónamh mar bhardaigh ó 1896 i leith.

The Local Government (Ireland) Act 1898 completely changed local government. It created three new forms of local authority: county councils, rural district councils and urban district councils. The law established democratic local government at county level, with county councils taking over the administrative functions previously exercised by the grand juries.

The right to vote

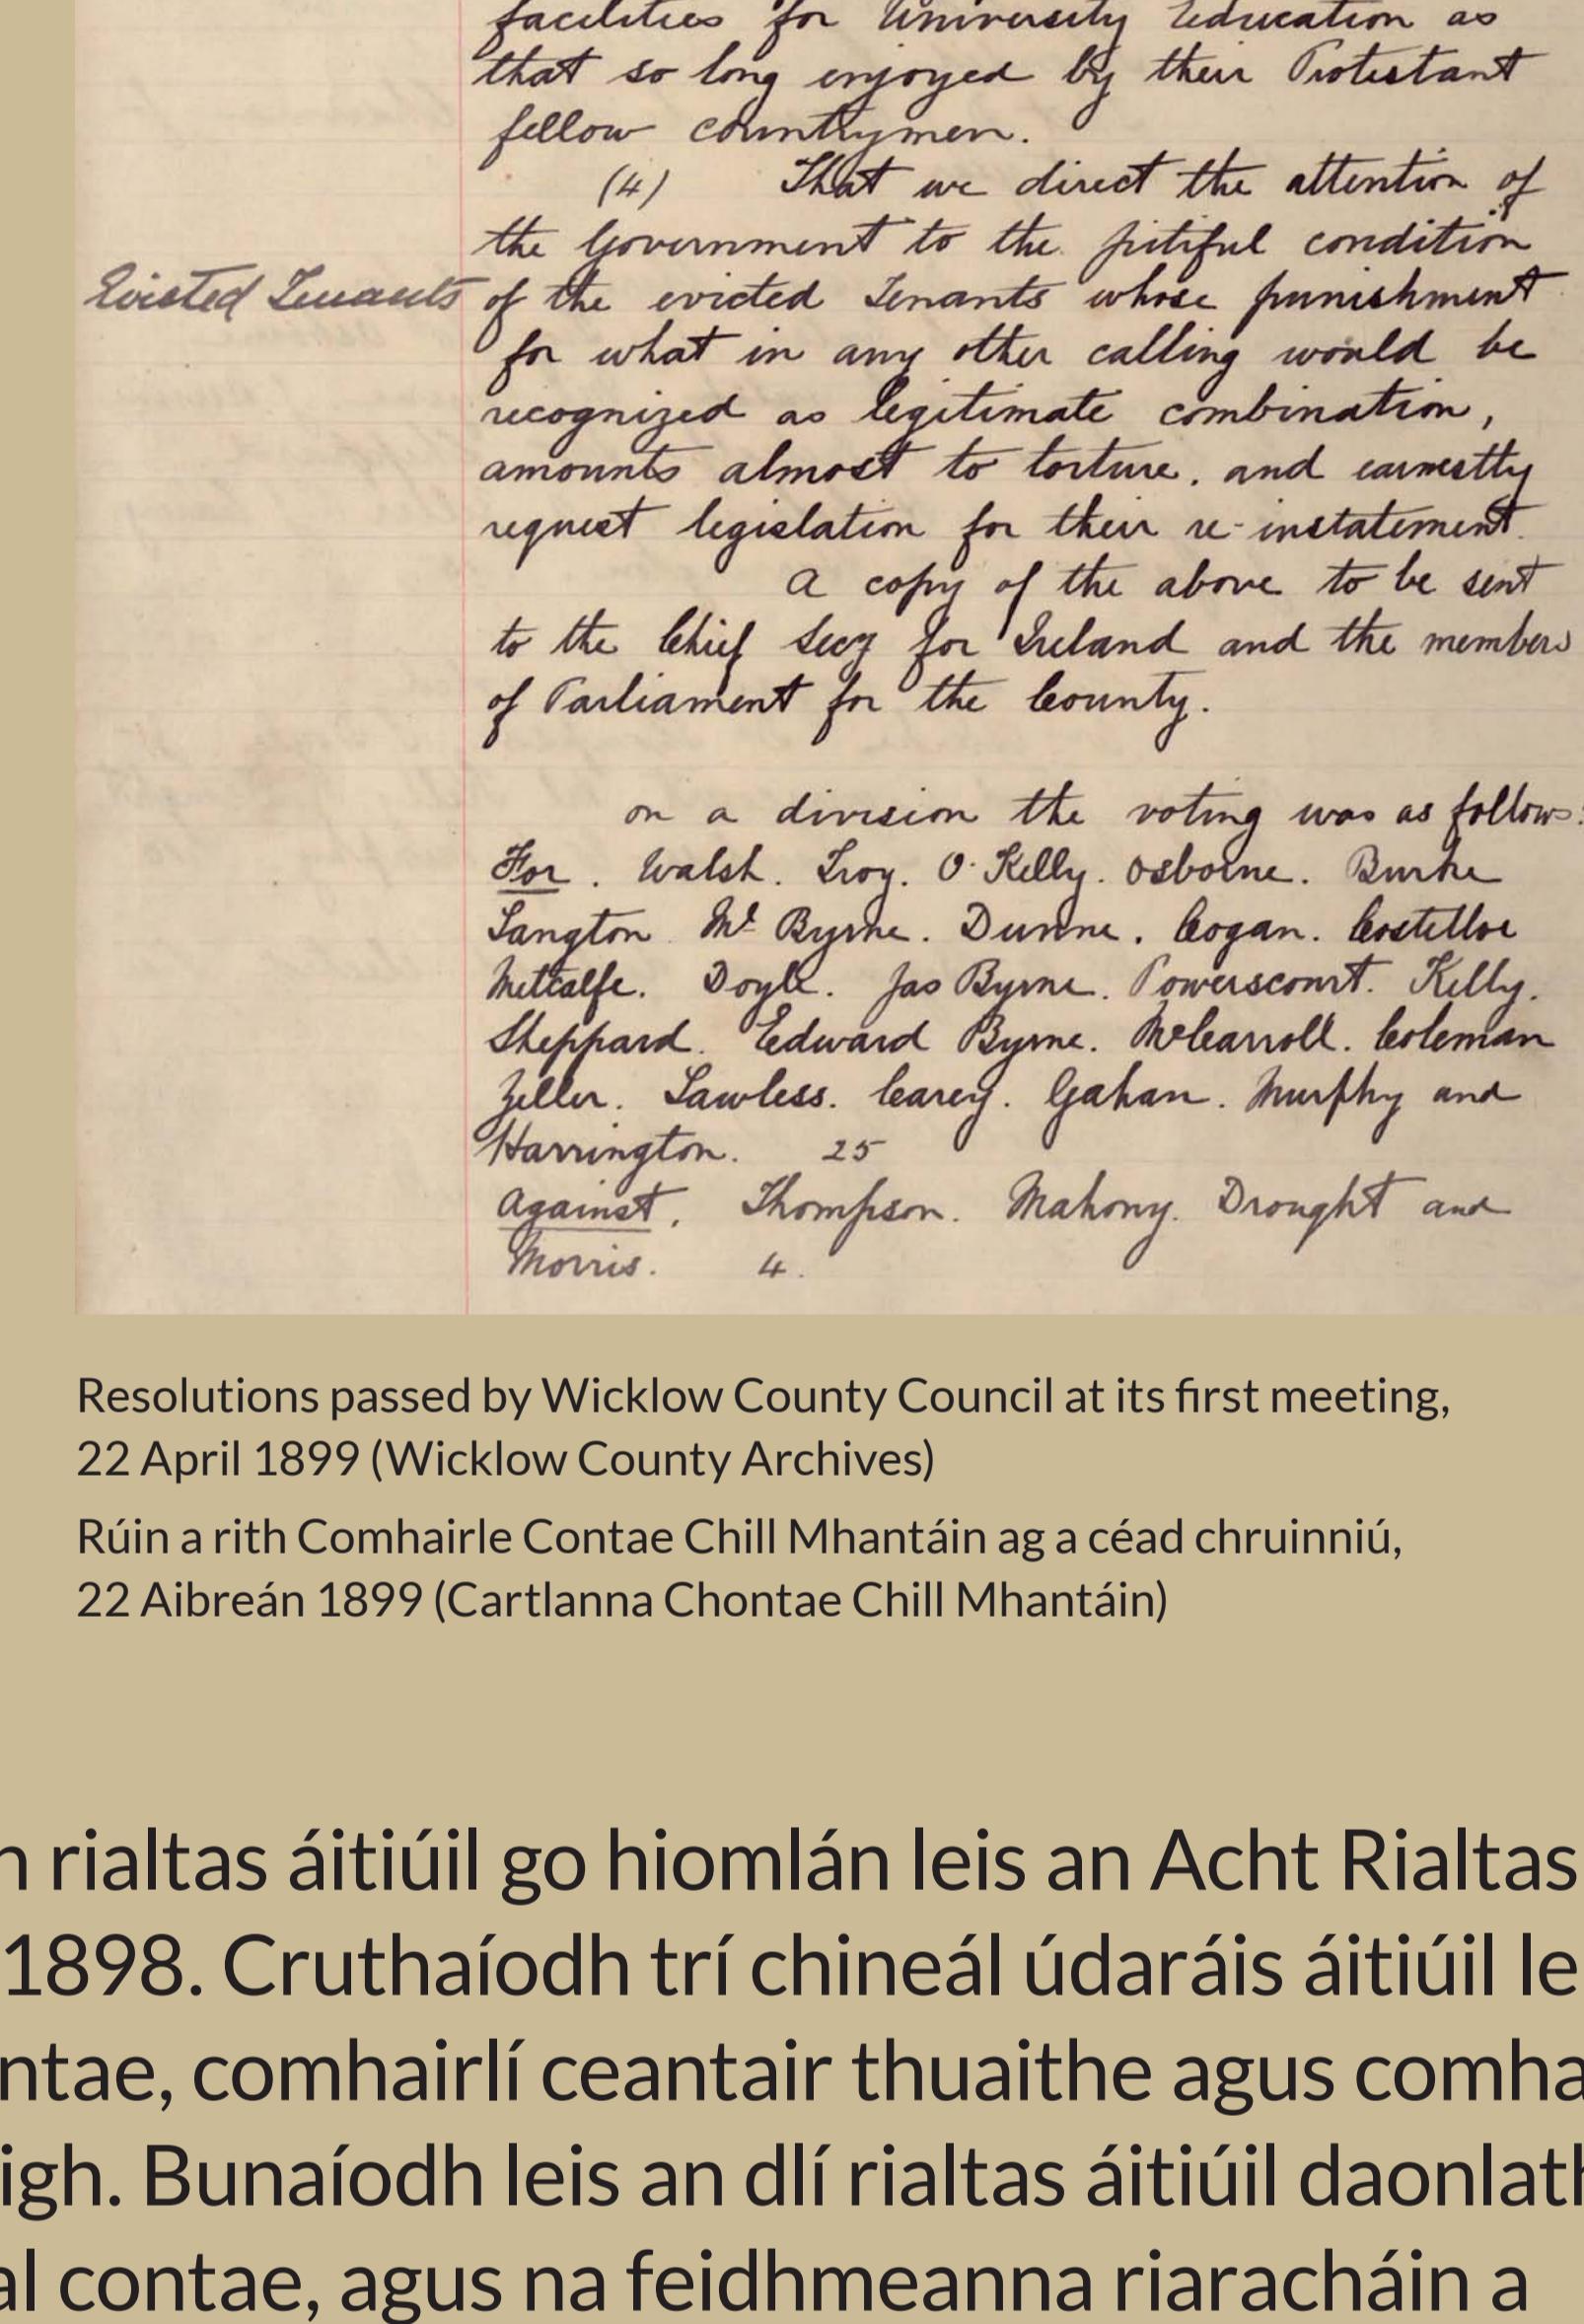

A revolutionary aspect of the new system was that it created a broader franchise. Men over 21 years who were householders, or who rented a portion of a house, valued at a minimum of £10 per year could vote, as could women over 30 years of age who met the same criteria. Women could also contest both rural and urban district council seats. The average annual wage for agricultural labour in Ireland at the time was only £25, so most people could not vote.

Initially the Irish Parliamentary Party was sceptical about the new legislation, seeing it as part of the British policy of 'killing Home Rule with kindness', yet nationalists benefitted from it. Many future parliamentary politicians served as local councillors and built up valuable experience and support networks as a result.

Athraíodh an rialtas áitiúil go hiomlán leis an Acht Rialtas Áitiúil (Éire) 1898. Cruthaíodh trí chineál údarás áitiúil leis: comhairlí contae, comhairlí ceantair thuaithe agus comhairlí ceantar uibhig. Bunaíodh leis an dlí rialtas áitiúil daonlathach ar an leibhéal contae, agus na feidhmeanna riarracháin a rinneadh mór-ghiúiríthe roimh seo a nglacadh ag na comhairlí contae.

Ceart vótala

Gníréabhlóideach den chóras úr ba ea gur cruthaíodh saincheadúnas níos leithne leis. D'fhéadadh fir os cionn 21 bliain d'aois arbh shealbhóiri tí iad, nó a raibh cion de theach á fháil ar cios acu, dar luach £10 ar a laghad in aghaidh na bliana vóta chaitheamh, agus d'fhéadadh mná os cionn 30 bliain d'aois a chomhlíon na critéir chéanna vóta a chaitheamh. D'fhéadadh mná dul san iomaíocht chomh maith i suíocháin comhairlí ceantair thuaithe agus uibhig ar aon. Ní raibh sa mheánpá bliantúil d'oibrí talmhaíochta in Éirinn ag an am ach £25, mar sin ní raibh an chuid is mó de na daoine ábalta vótáil.

Ar dtús bhí Páirtí Parlaiminteach na hÉireann sceiptíúil faoi reachtaíocht, agus d'fhéach siad air mar chuid de bheartas na Breataine 'deireadh a chur le Rialtas Dúchais go cineálta', ach bhí leas á fháil ag náisiúnaithe as. D'fhoín a lán polaiteoirí parlaiminteacha níos déanaí mar chomhairleoirí áitiúla agus d'fhorbair siad taithí luachmhar agus gréasán tacáiochta mar thoradh air sin.

Local Elections Toghchán Áitiúla

Cartlannaithe agus Bainistoeoirí Taifead an Rialtais Áitiúil

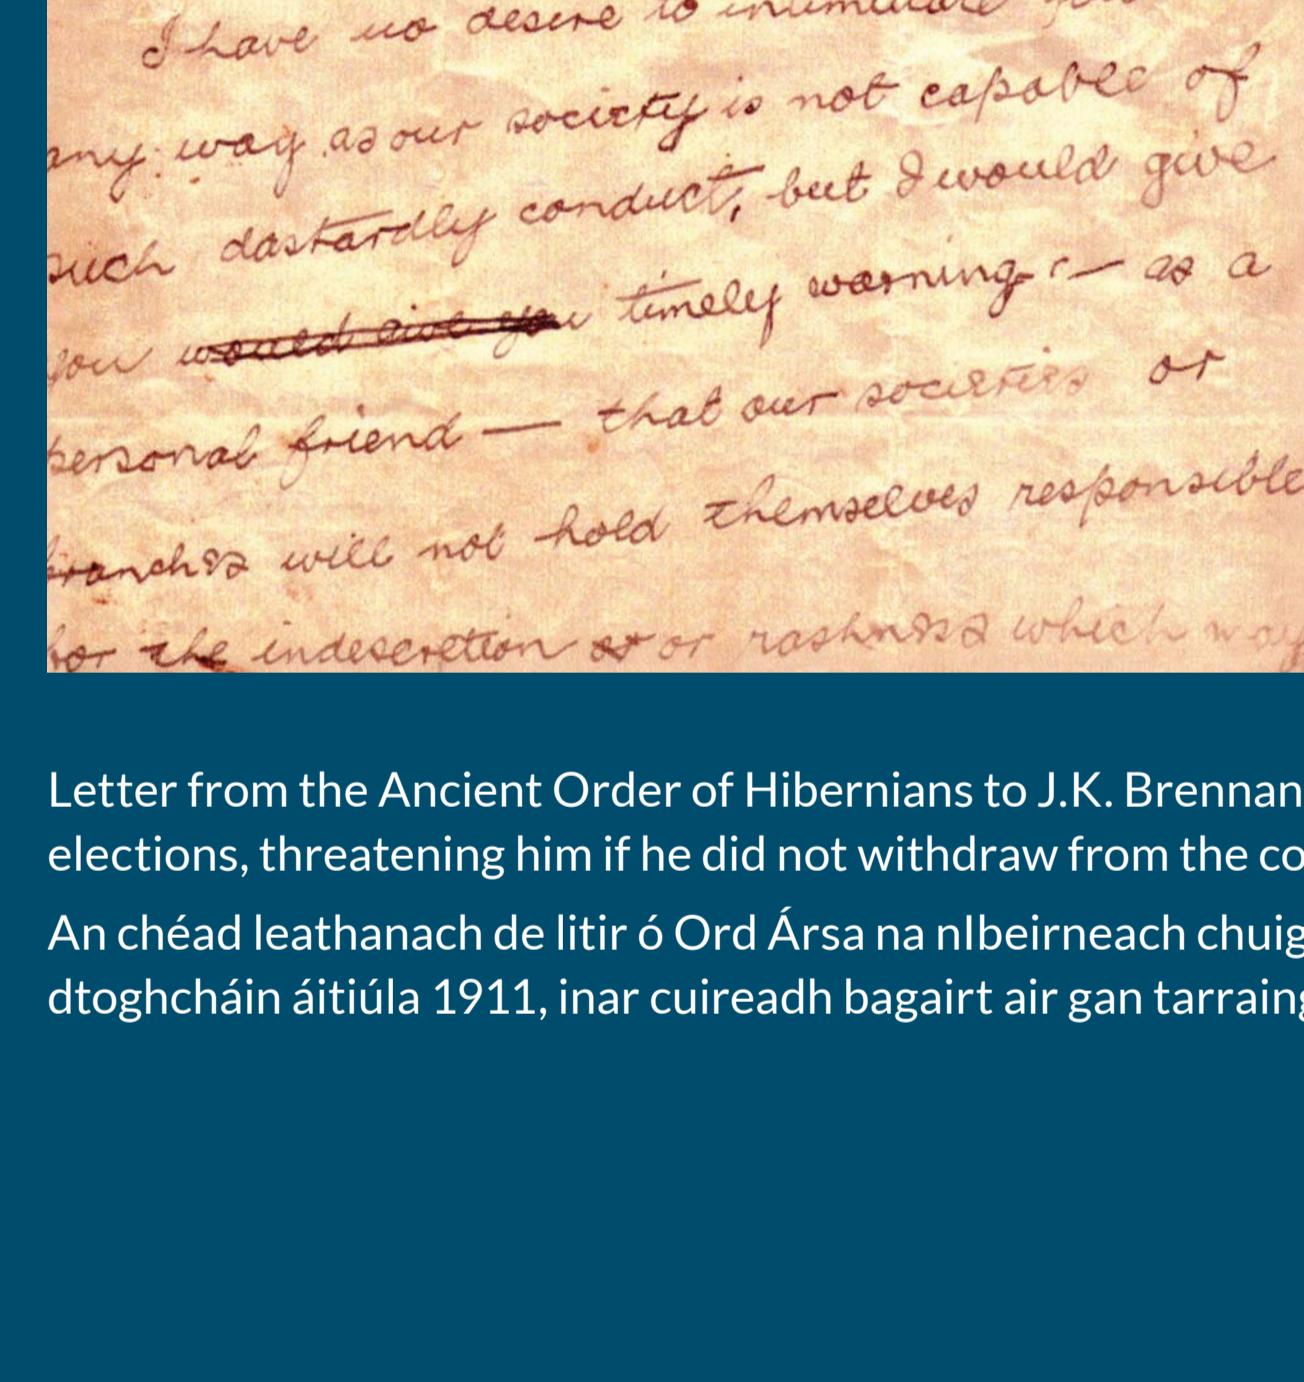

The first elections to the county councils and rural district councils took place on 6 April 1899. County councils met for the first time on 22 April of that year. Nationalist candidates won about 75% of the county council seats. Local elections were required to be held every three years, changing to every five years since 1953. However, there were several postponements through the years.

Proportional representation was introduced for the 1920 local elections, with the expectation that it would dilute Sinn Féin support. However, achieving widespread electoral success, the party took control of 25 of the 33 county councils. At the same time, Unionists consolidated their control in north-eastern areas.

The right to vote

In 1935, the franchise was reformed when all men and women over 21 years were granted the right to vote, without any qualification.

In 1999, the electorate approved a referendum providing constitutional recognition of local government and guaranteeing elections at intervals of five years.

As I have seen the shadowy forces which may be used by some of the law breakers of my brotherhood on the occasion of this approaching election.
Take heed in time Mr. Brennan, take a just advice, do not sleep with an aged toe over a stone, show some of your old time valour and headlongness either withdraw from this election or with the utmost speed seek your passage to some foreign land where you shall be safe from the inevitable wrath which we know from the inevitable wrath which shall result.

Faithfully yours
John O'Leary

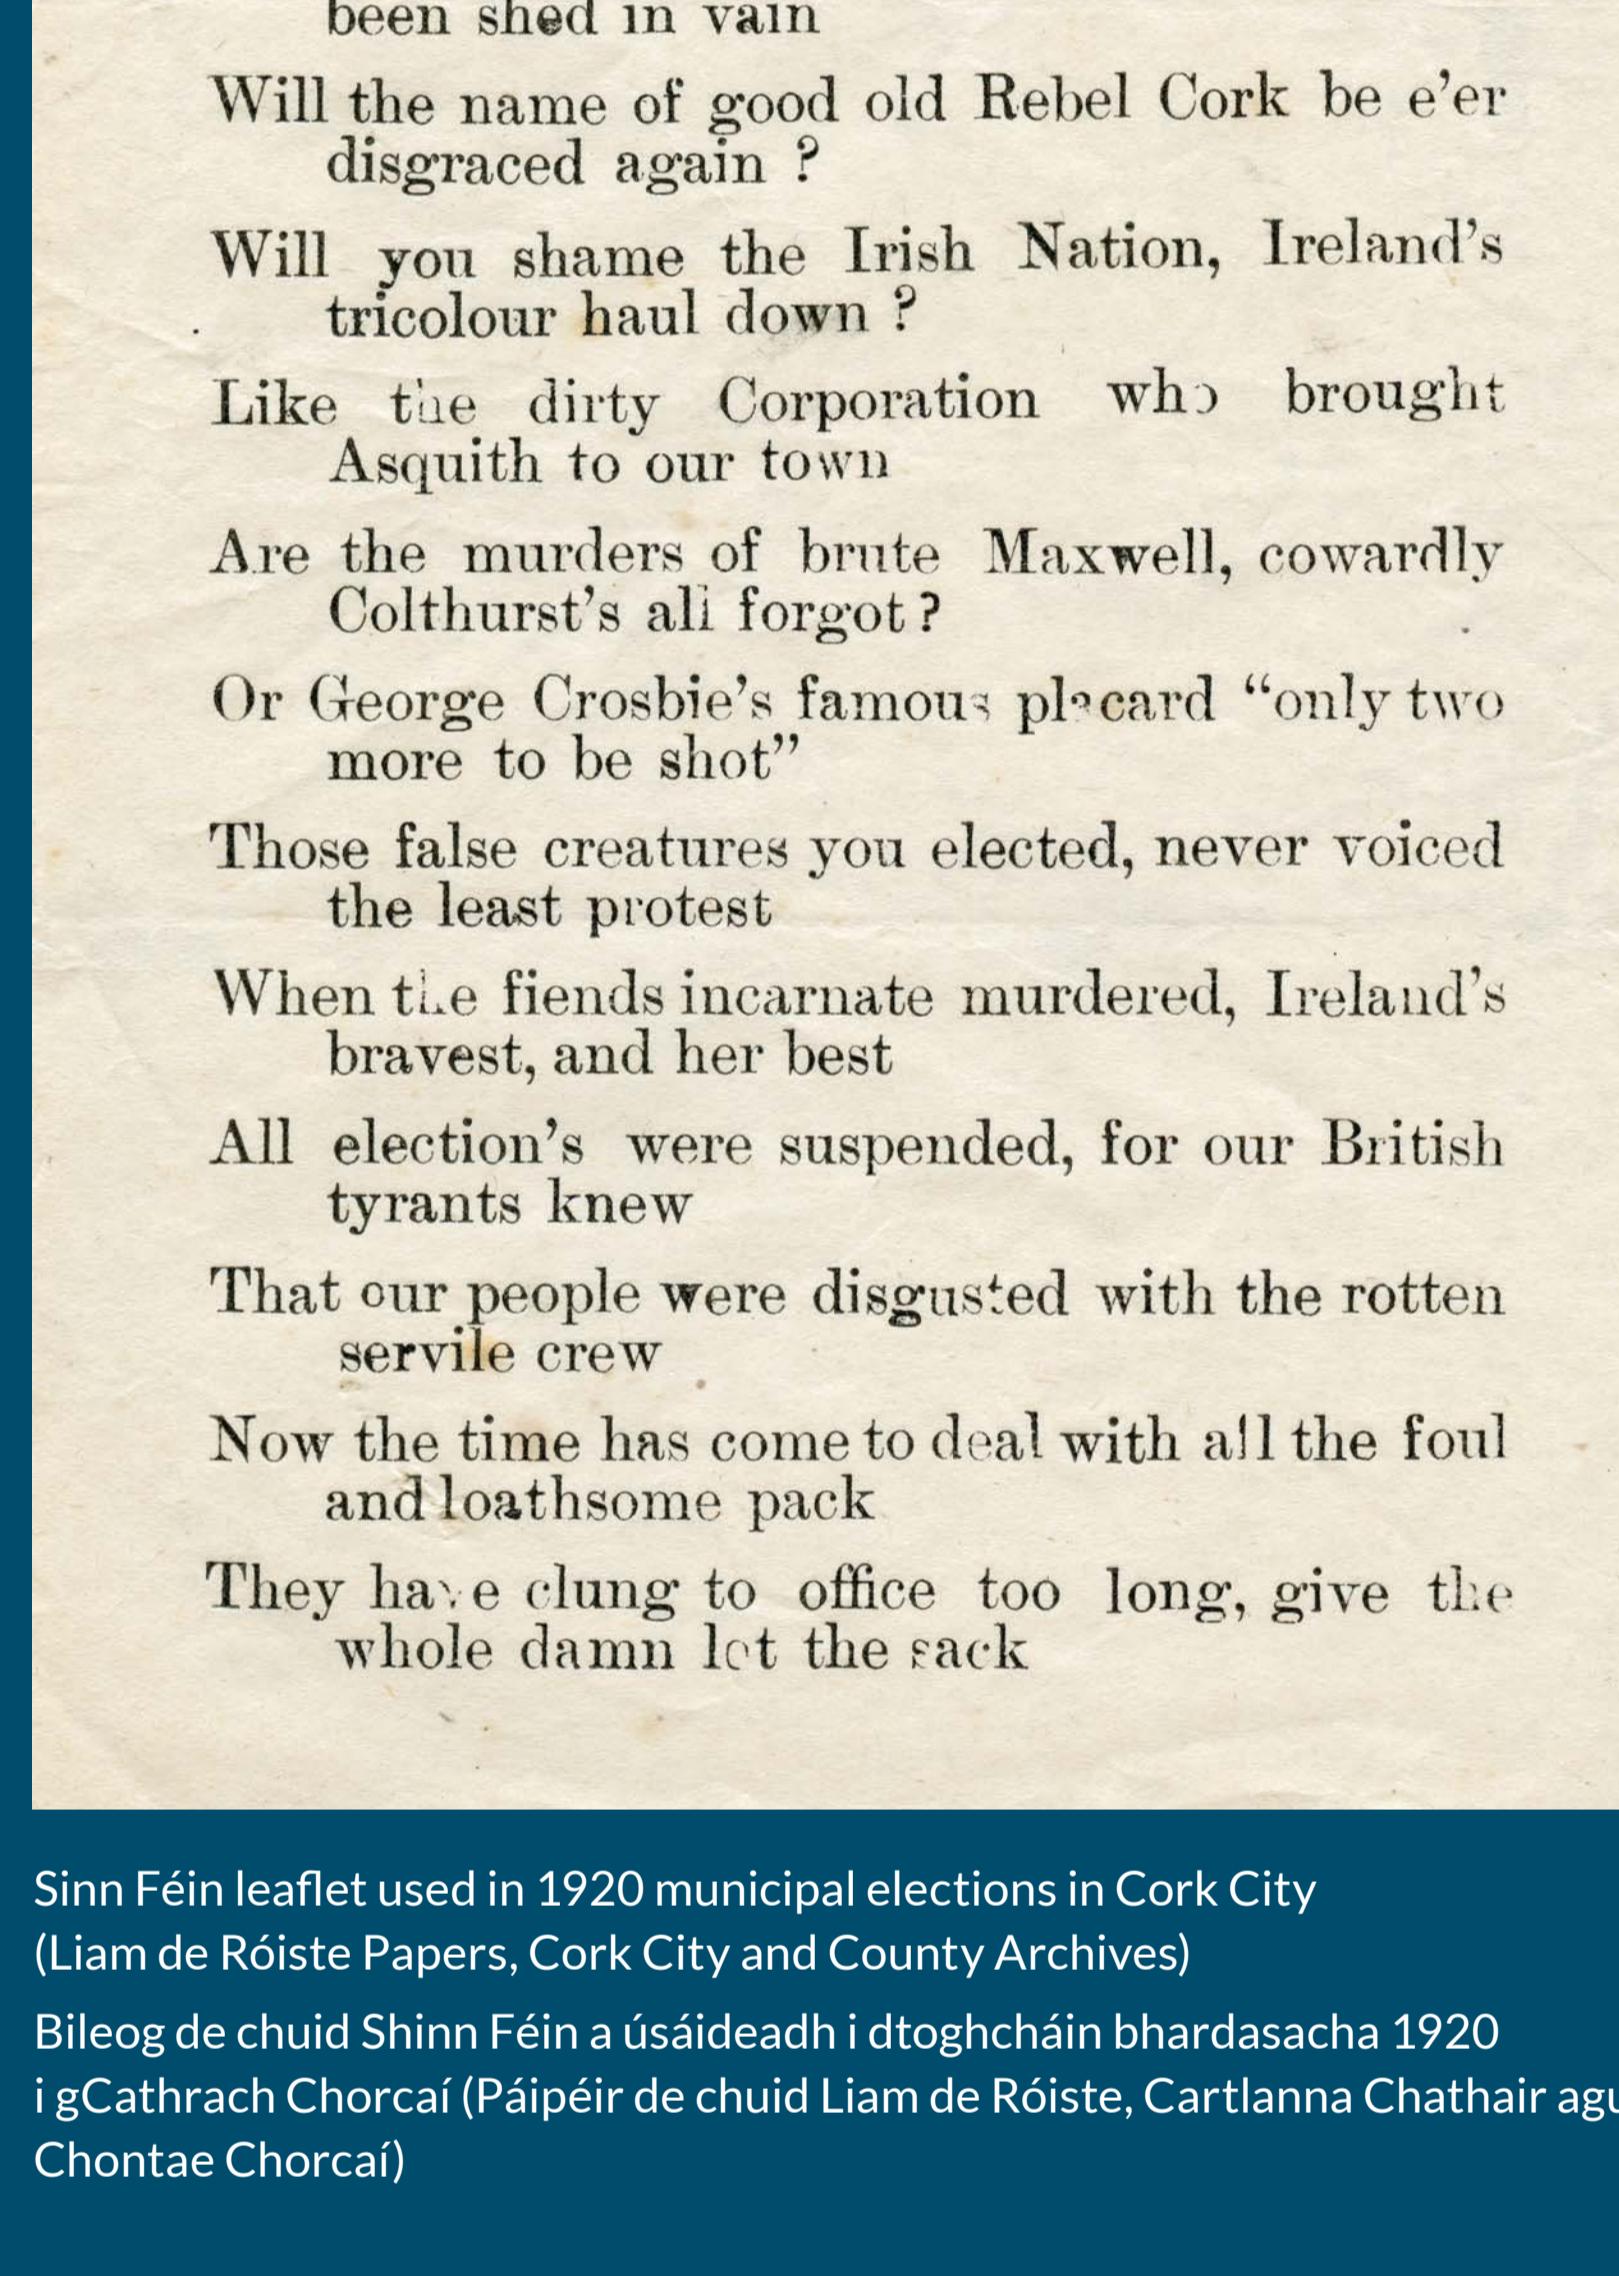

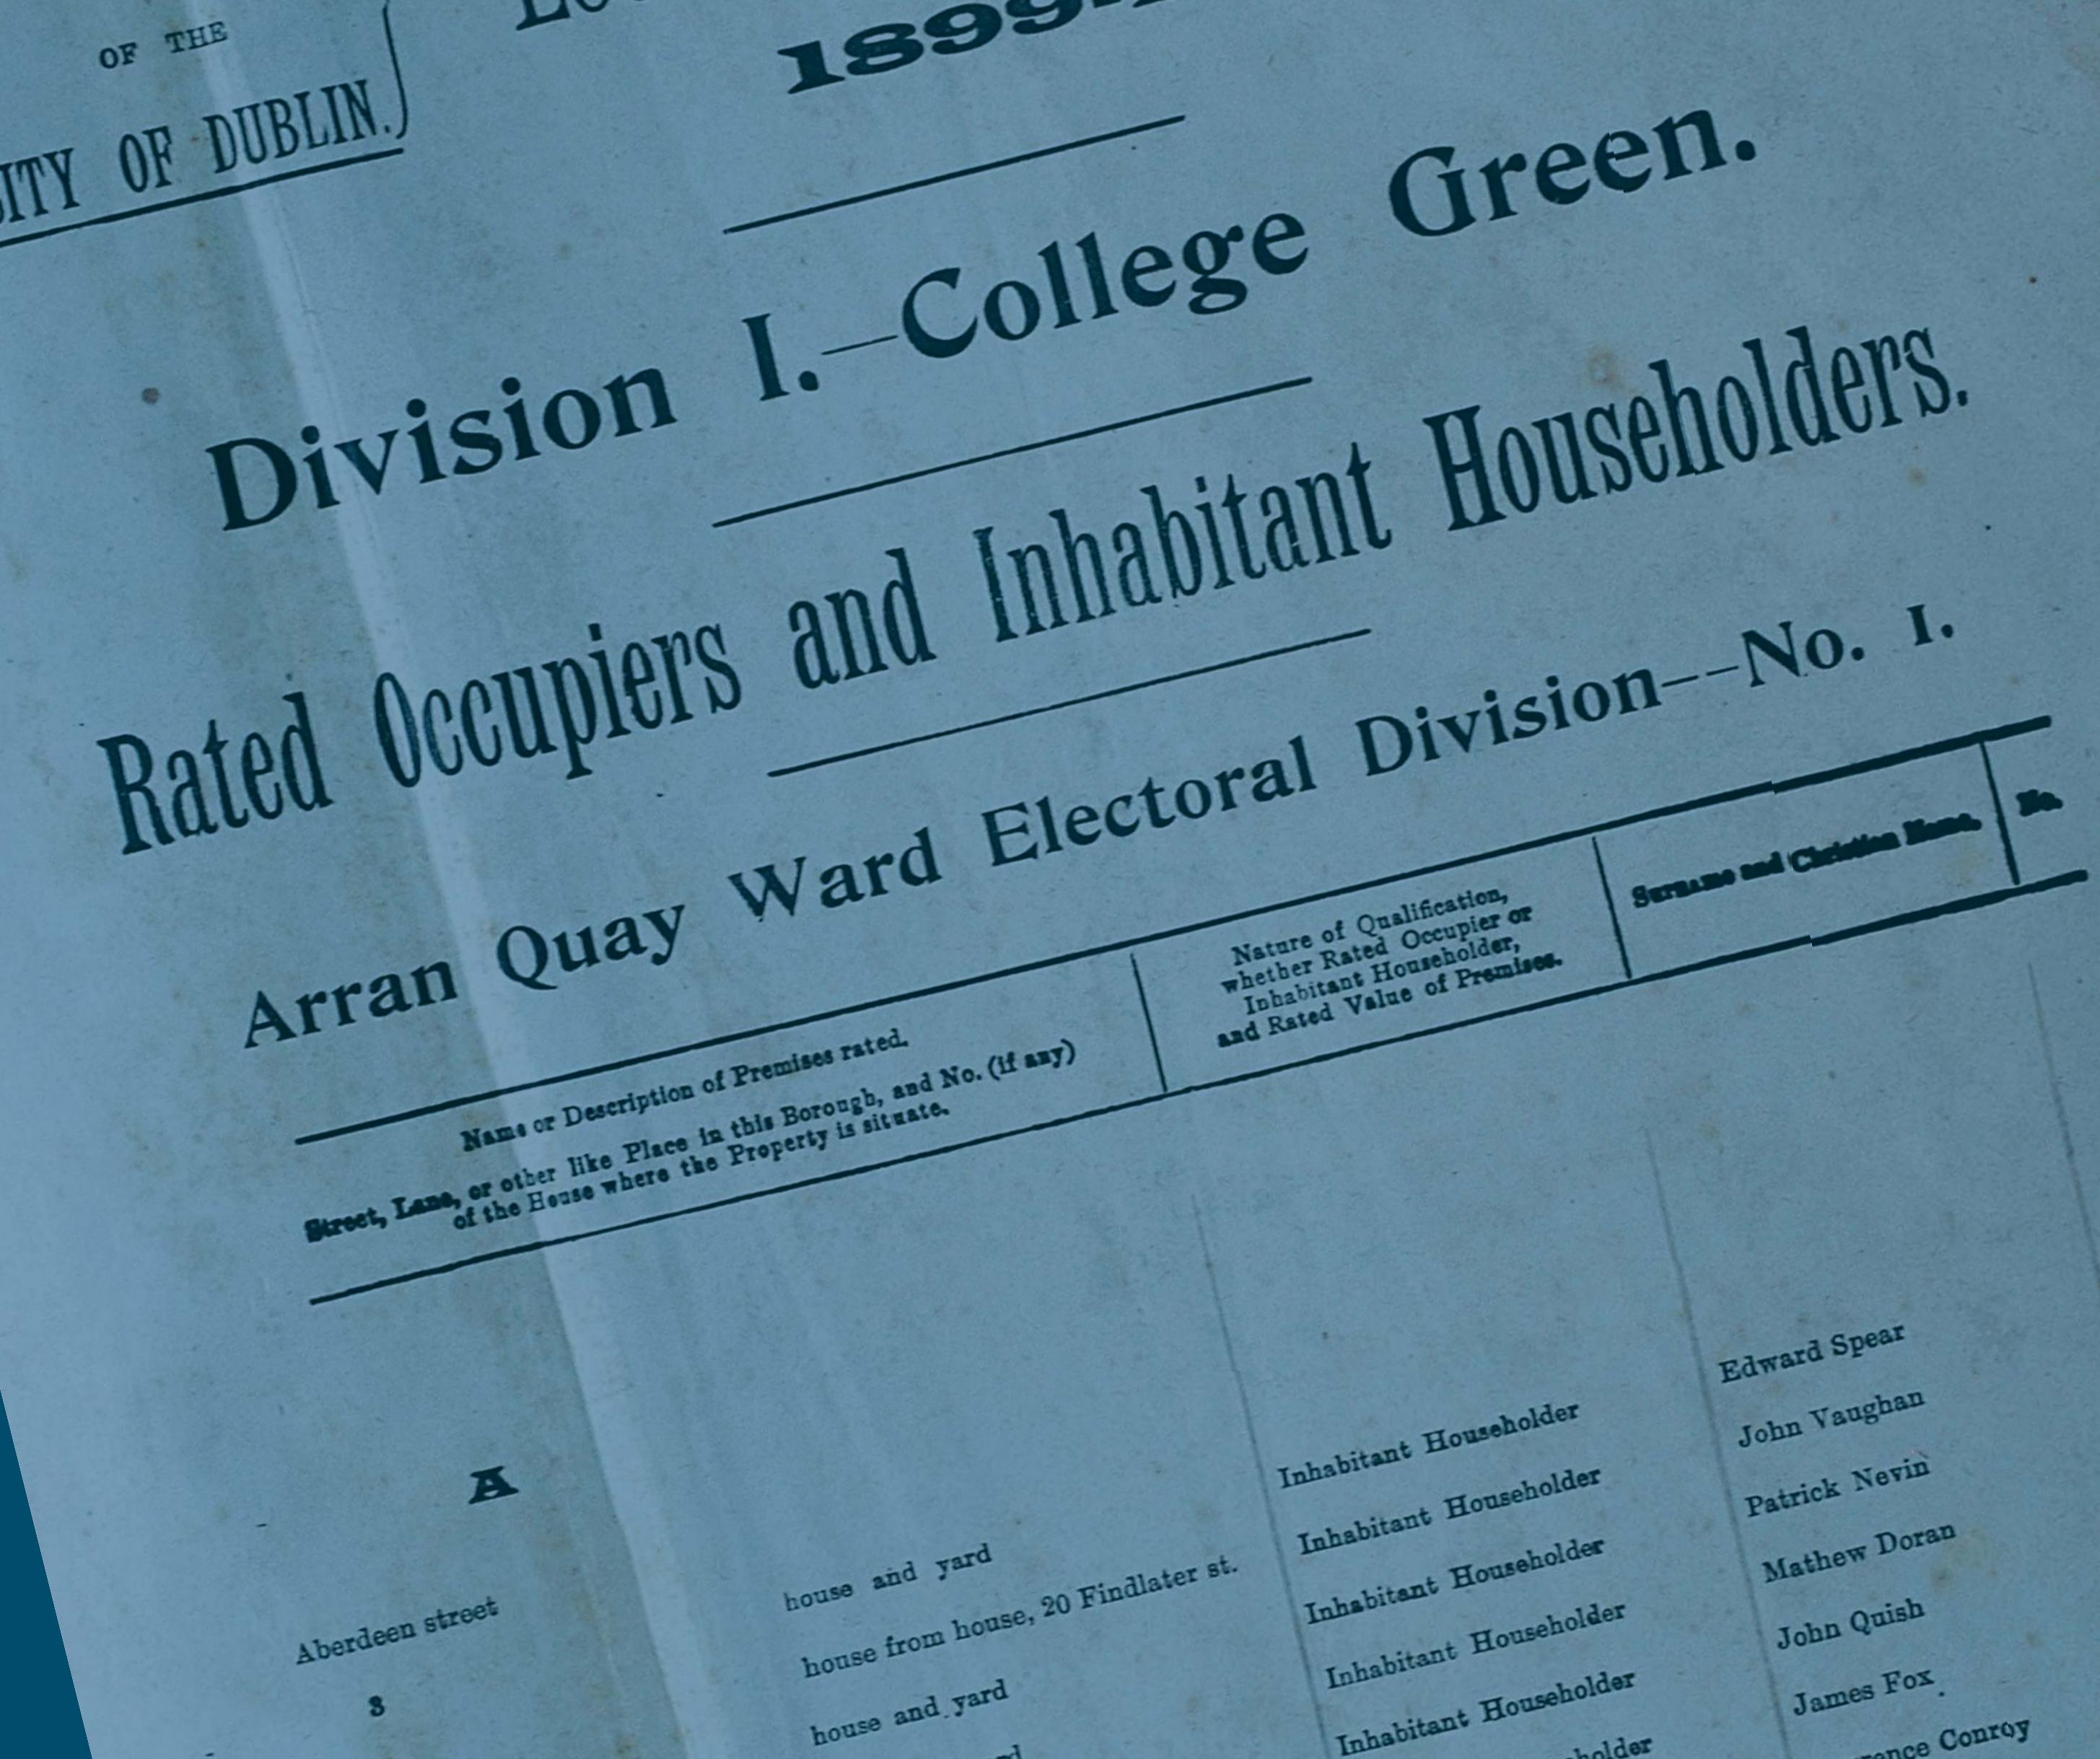

If you do not withdraw from the election, I will bring you such advice. I shall not fail to see you being brought back some day from your canvassing abominable stretches in respect of the advice.

BEWARE! BEWARE!

Tionóladh na chéad toghchán chun na gcomhairí contae agus na gcomhairí ceantair thuaithé an 6 Aibreán 1899. Thiocfadh formhór na gcomhairí contae le chéile den chéad uair ar an 22 Aibreán den bhliain sin. Bhuaigh iarrthóirí arbh náisiúnaigh iad thart ar 75% de shuiochán na gcomhairí contae. Bhíodh gá le toghchán áitiúla a thionól gach trí bliana, ag athrú ansin go gach cúig bliana ó 1953 i leith. Mar sin féin, cuireadh na toghcháin siar roinnt uaireanta le linn na mblianta.

Tugadh ionadaíocht chionmhar isteach le haghaidh na dtoghchán áitiúil in 1920, ag súil go laghdófaí tacáiocht Shinn Féin leis. Agus rath toghchánach forleathan bainte amach acu, áfach, ghlac an páirtí ceannas ar 25 ceann den 33 comhairle contae. Ag an am céanna, chomhdhlúthaigní na hAontachtaithe a smacht i limitéir thoir thuaidh.

Ceart vótala

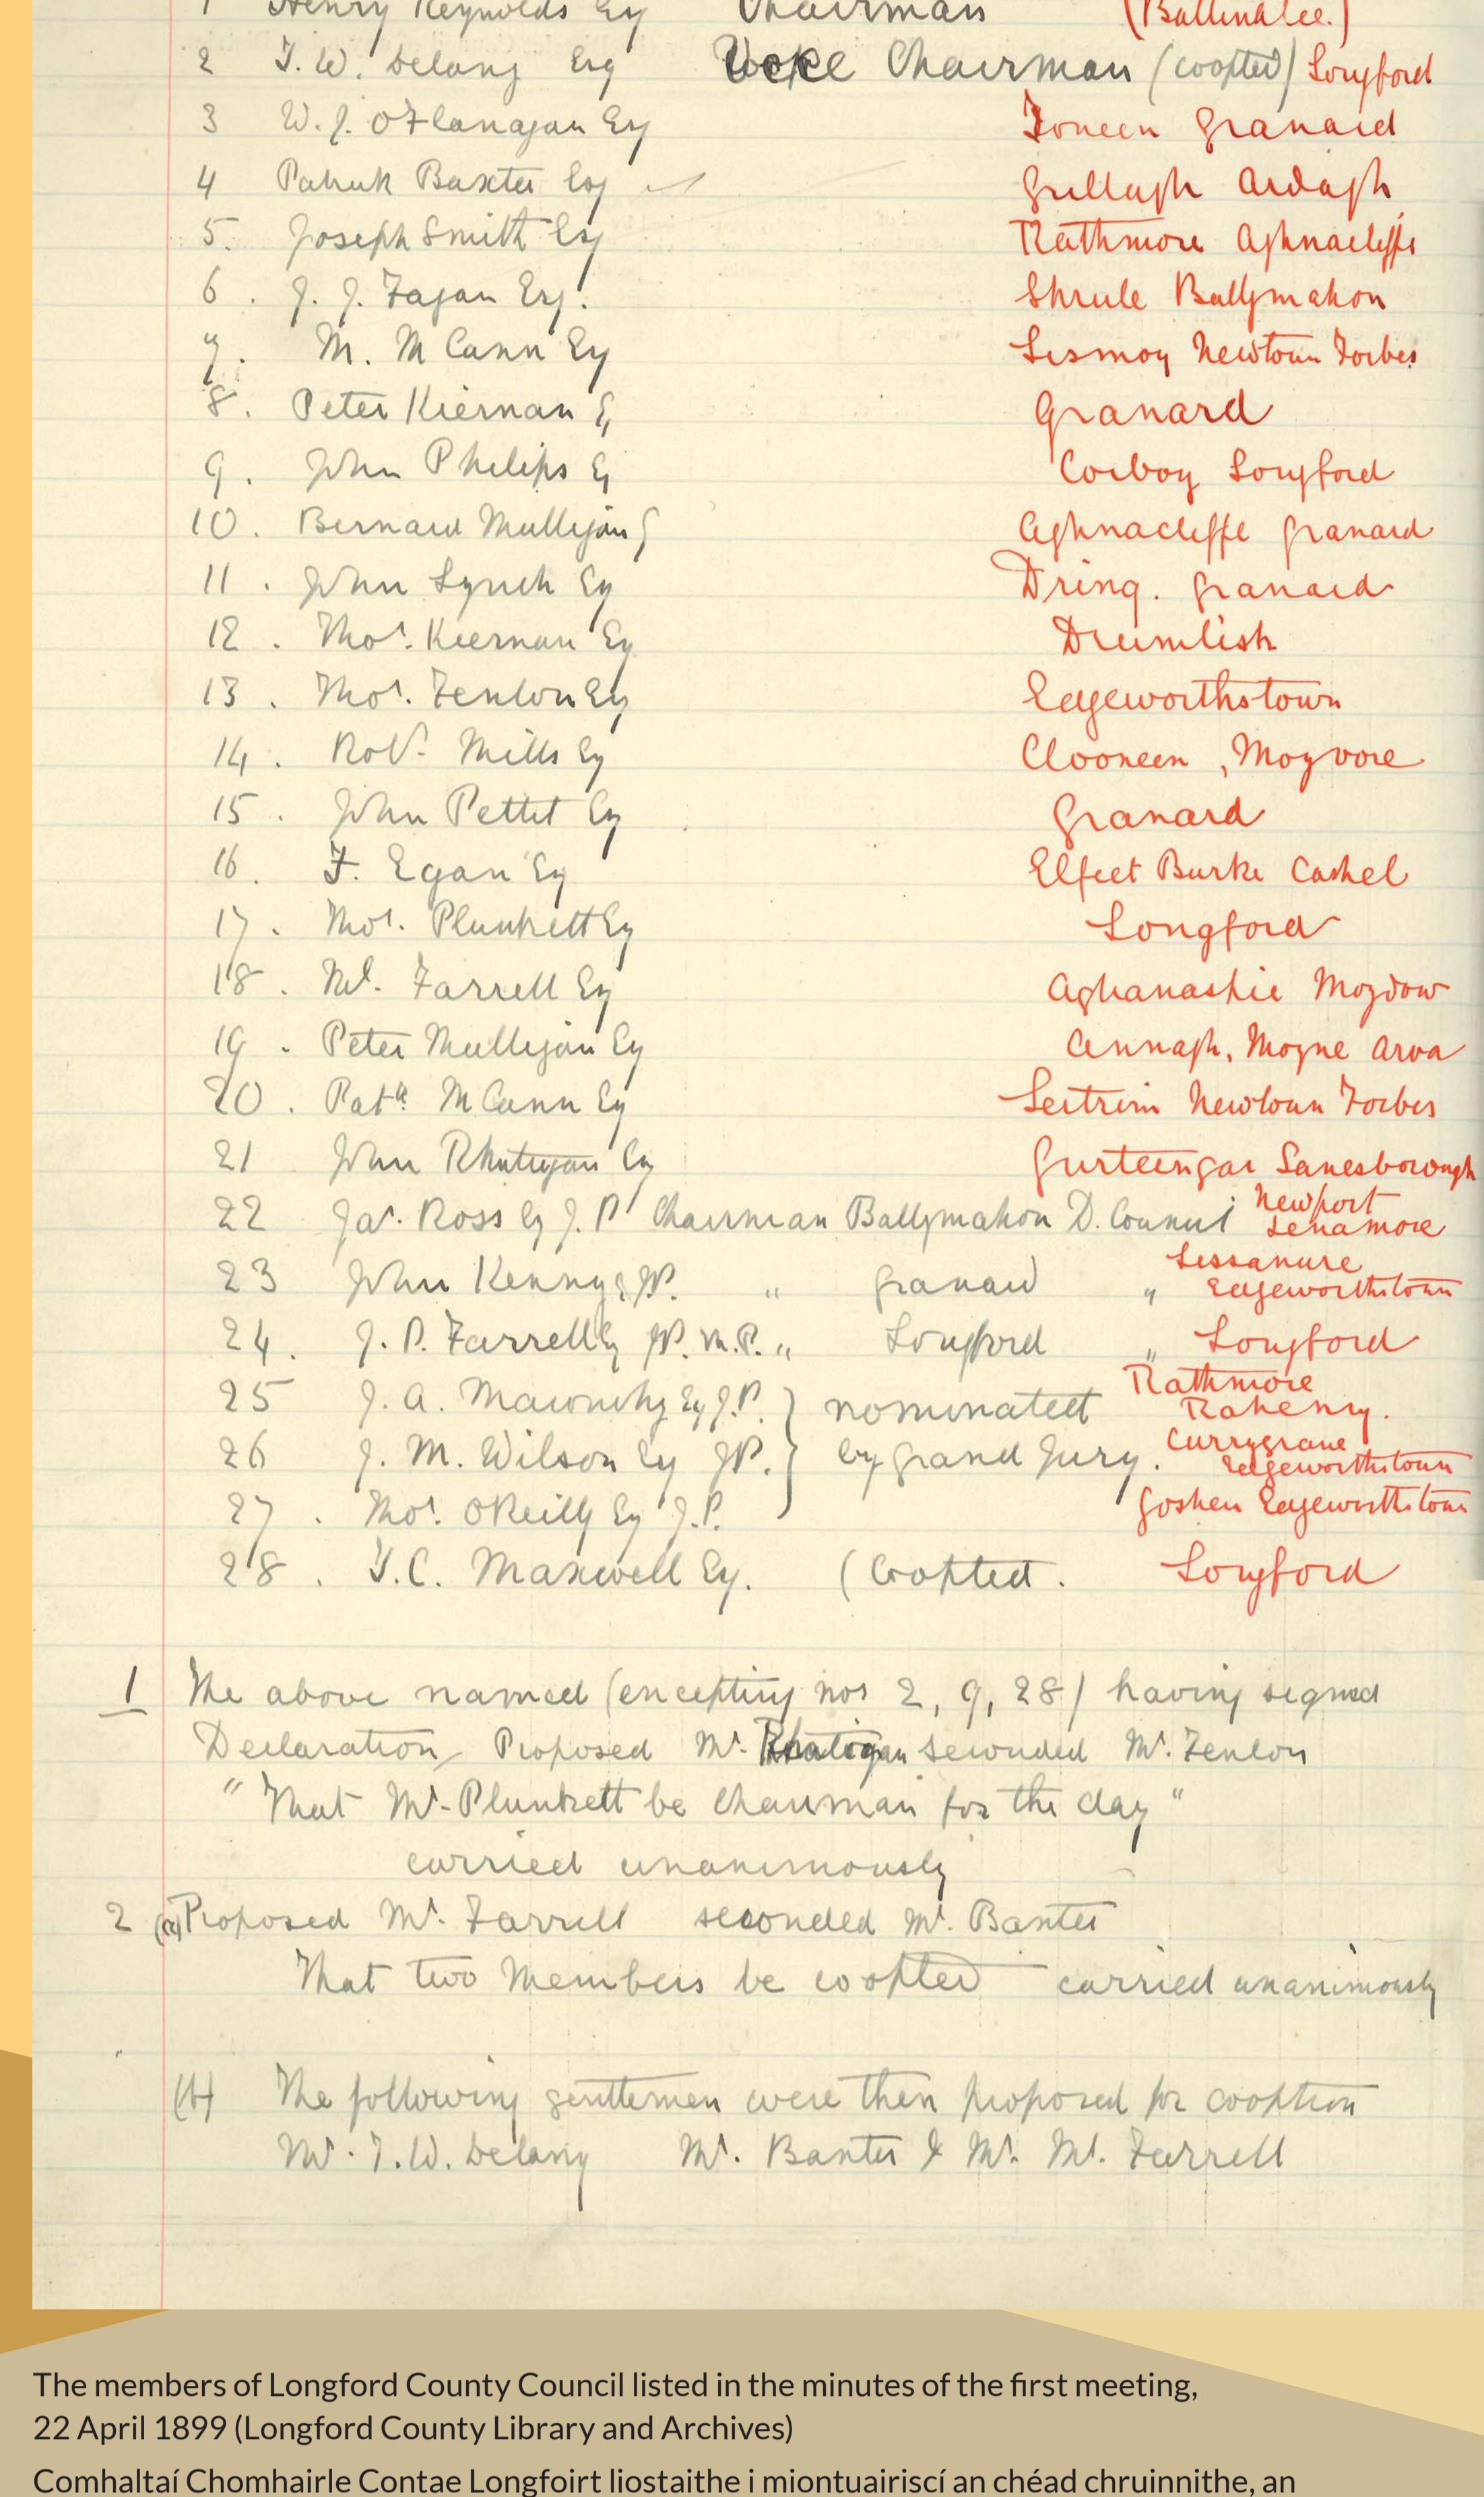

In 1935, rinneadh an saincheadúnas a athchóiriú nuair a tugadh an cheart chun vótala do gach fear agus bean os cionn 21 bliain d'aois, gan caillocht ar bith.

In 1999, d'fhaomh na toghthóirí reifreann inar soláthraíodh aitheantas ar an rialtas áitiúil sa bhunreacht agus inar ráthaíodh toghchán ag eatraimh cúig bliana.

Le himeachta ama d'éirigh an córas toghthóirí níos daonlatháí. Mórchéim sa treoir sin ba ea nuair a rinneadh mná inchálilthe lena dtoghadh chun comháirí contae in 1911.

Rinneadh athruithe suntasacha ar na rialacha incháliltheachta chun seasamh sa toghchán thar na blianta. Ba cheart d'iarthóirí gnáthchónaí a bheith orthu in Éirinn agus ba cheart dóibh a bheith 18 mbliana d'aois ar a laghad. Ní chaithfidh siad a bheith ina saoránaigh Éireannacha. Is le páirtithe polaitíula formhór na n-iarrthóirí ach is duine Neamhspleácha a lán diobh.

In 2003 ciallaíonn cealú an 'dé-shainordaithe' nach bhféadfadh comhaltaí den Oireachtas suíocháin sa chomhairle a bheith acu a thuilleadh. Le móriathchóirithe in 2014 laghdaíodh líon na n-údarás áitiúil ó 114 go 31, agus laghdaíodh líon na gcomhairleoirí ó 1,627 go 949.

Tá feidhmeanna 'forchoimeádta' ag comhairleoirí, lena n-áirítear freagracht as mórchinní beartais agus faomhadh an bhuiséid. Tá cur chun feidhme a gcinntí faoi fhreagracht fheidhmeannach na n-údarás áitiúil. Déanann comhairleoirí ionadaíocht ar son a dtogthóirí ina dtoghcheantair, ag plé ceisteanálaí. Over time the electoral system became more democratic. A major step in this direction was when women became eligible for election to county councils in 1911.

Significant changes in eligibility rules for standing for election have been made over the years. Candidates must be ordinarily resident in Ireland and at least 18 years old. They do not need to be Irish citizens. Most candidates belong to political parties though many are Independents.

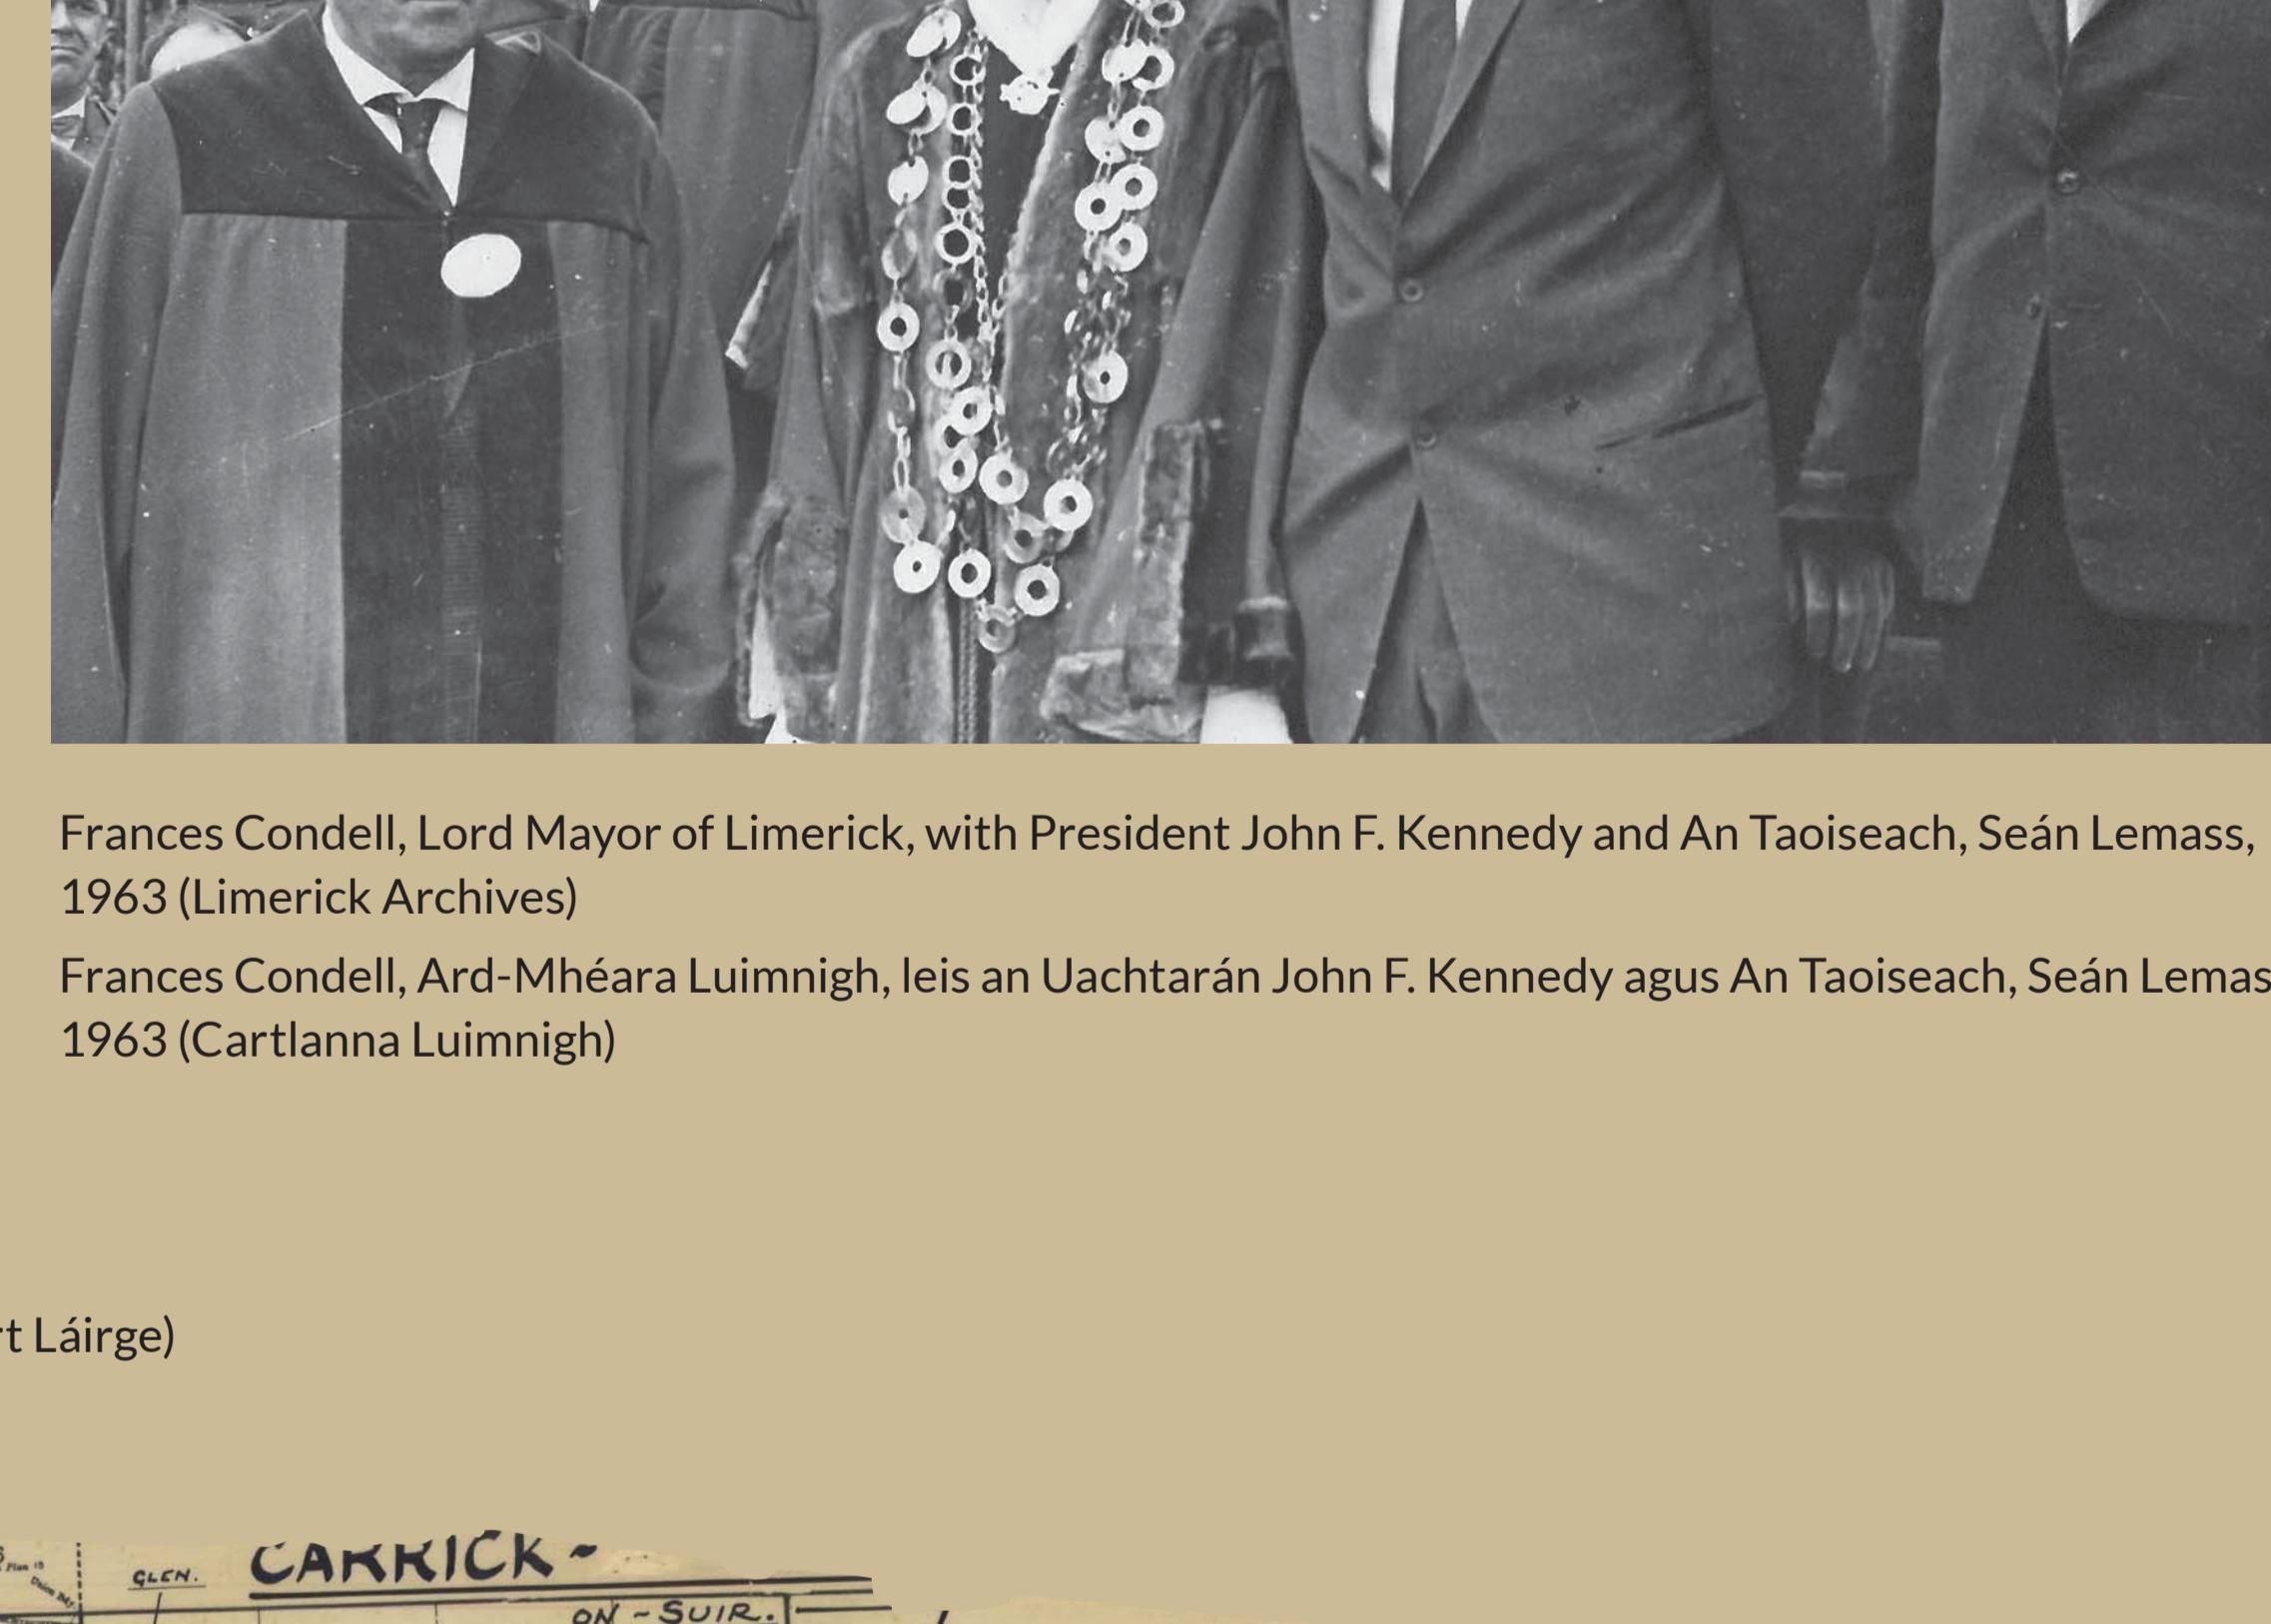

In 2003 the abolition of the 'dual mandate' meant that members of the Oireachtas could no longer hold council seats. Major reforms in 2014 reduced the number of local authorities from 114 to 31, and the number of councillors from 1,627 to 949.

Councillors have 'reserved' functions, including responsibility for major policy decisions and the approval of the budget. Implementation of their decisions rests with the local authority executive. Councillors represent their constituents in their electoral areas, addressing local issues. The Cathaoirleach (chairperson) or Mayor, who is elected on an annual basis, represents the council at public functions and events.

Women over 30 years, who were householders or who rented a portion of a house, valued at a minimum of £10 per year could vote in local elections under the 1898 Act and could stand for election to district councils. In 1899, 31 were elected to rural district councils and 4 to urban district councils. It was not until 1918 that women could vote in national elections.

The earliest woman elected to Dublin City Council was the artist and suffragist, Sarah Cecilia Harrison in 1912. Also in 1912, Dr Mary Strangman, another activist, was elected to Waterford Corporation.

In the early years, some of the women elected to local authorities were members of Cumann na mBan and passionate campaigners. Lady Albinia Broderick, the first woman elected to Kerry County Council in 1920, was a republican and radical. One of the longest serving female prisoners of the 1916 period, Ellen Ryan from Tomcoole, Taghmon was the first woman elected to Wexford County Council in 1928. Caitlín Bean Uí Chléirigh, widow of Tom Clarke (executed leader of the 1916 Rising) became the first female Lord Mayor of Dublin in 1939.

The number of female councillors has been low over the years. Provisions in the 2012 Electoral Amendment (Political Funding) Act ensure that more female candidates are nominated for election.

D'fhéadadh mná os cionn 30 bliain d'aois arbh shealbhóirí tí iad, nó a raibh cion de theach á fháil ar cíos acu, dar luach £10 ar a laghad in aghaidh na bliana vótáil i dtoghcháin áitiúla faoi Acht 1898 agus d'fhéadfadh siad seasamh sna toghcháin do na comhairlí ceantair. In 1899, toghadh 31 bean i gcomhairlí ceantair thuaithe agus 4 bhean i gcomhairlí ceantair uirbigh. Ní raibh cead ag mná vótáil sna toghcháin náisiúnta go dtí 1918.

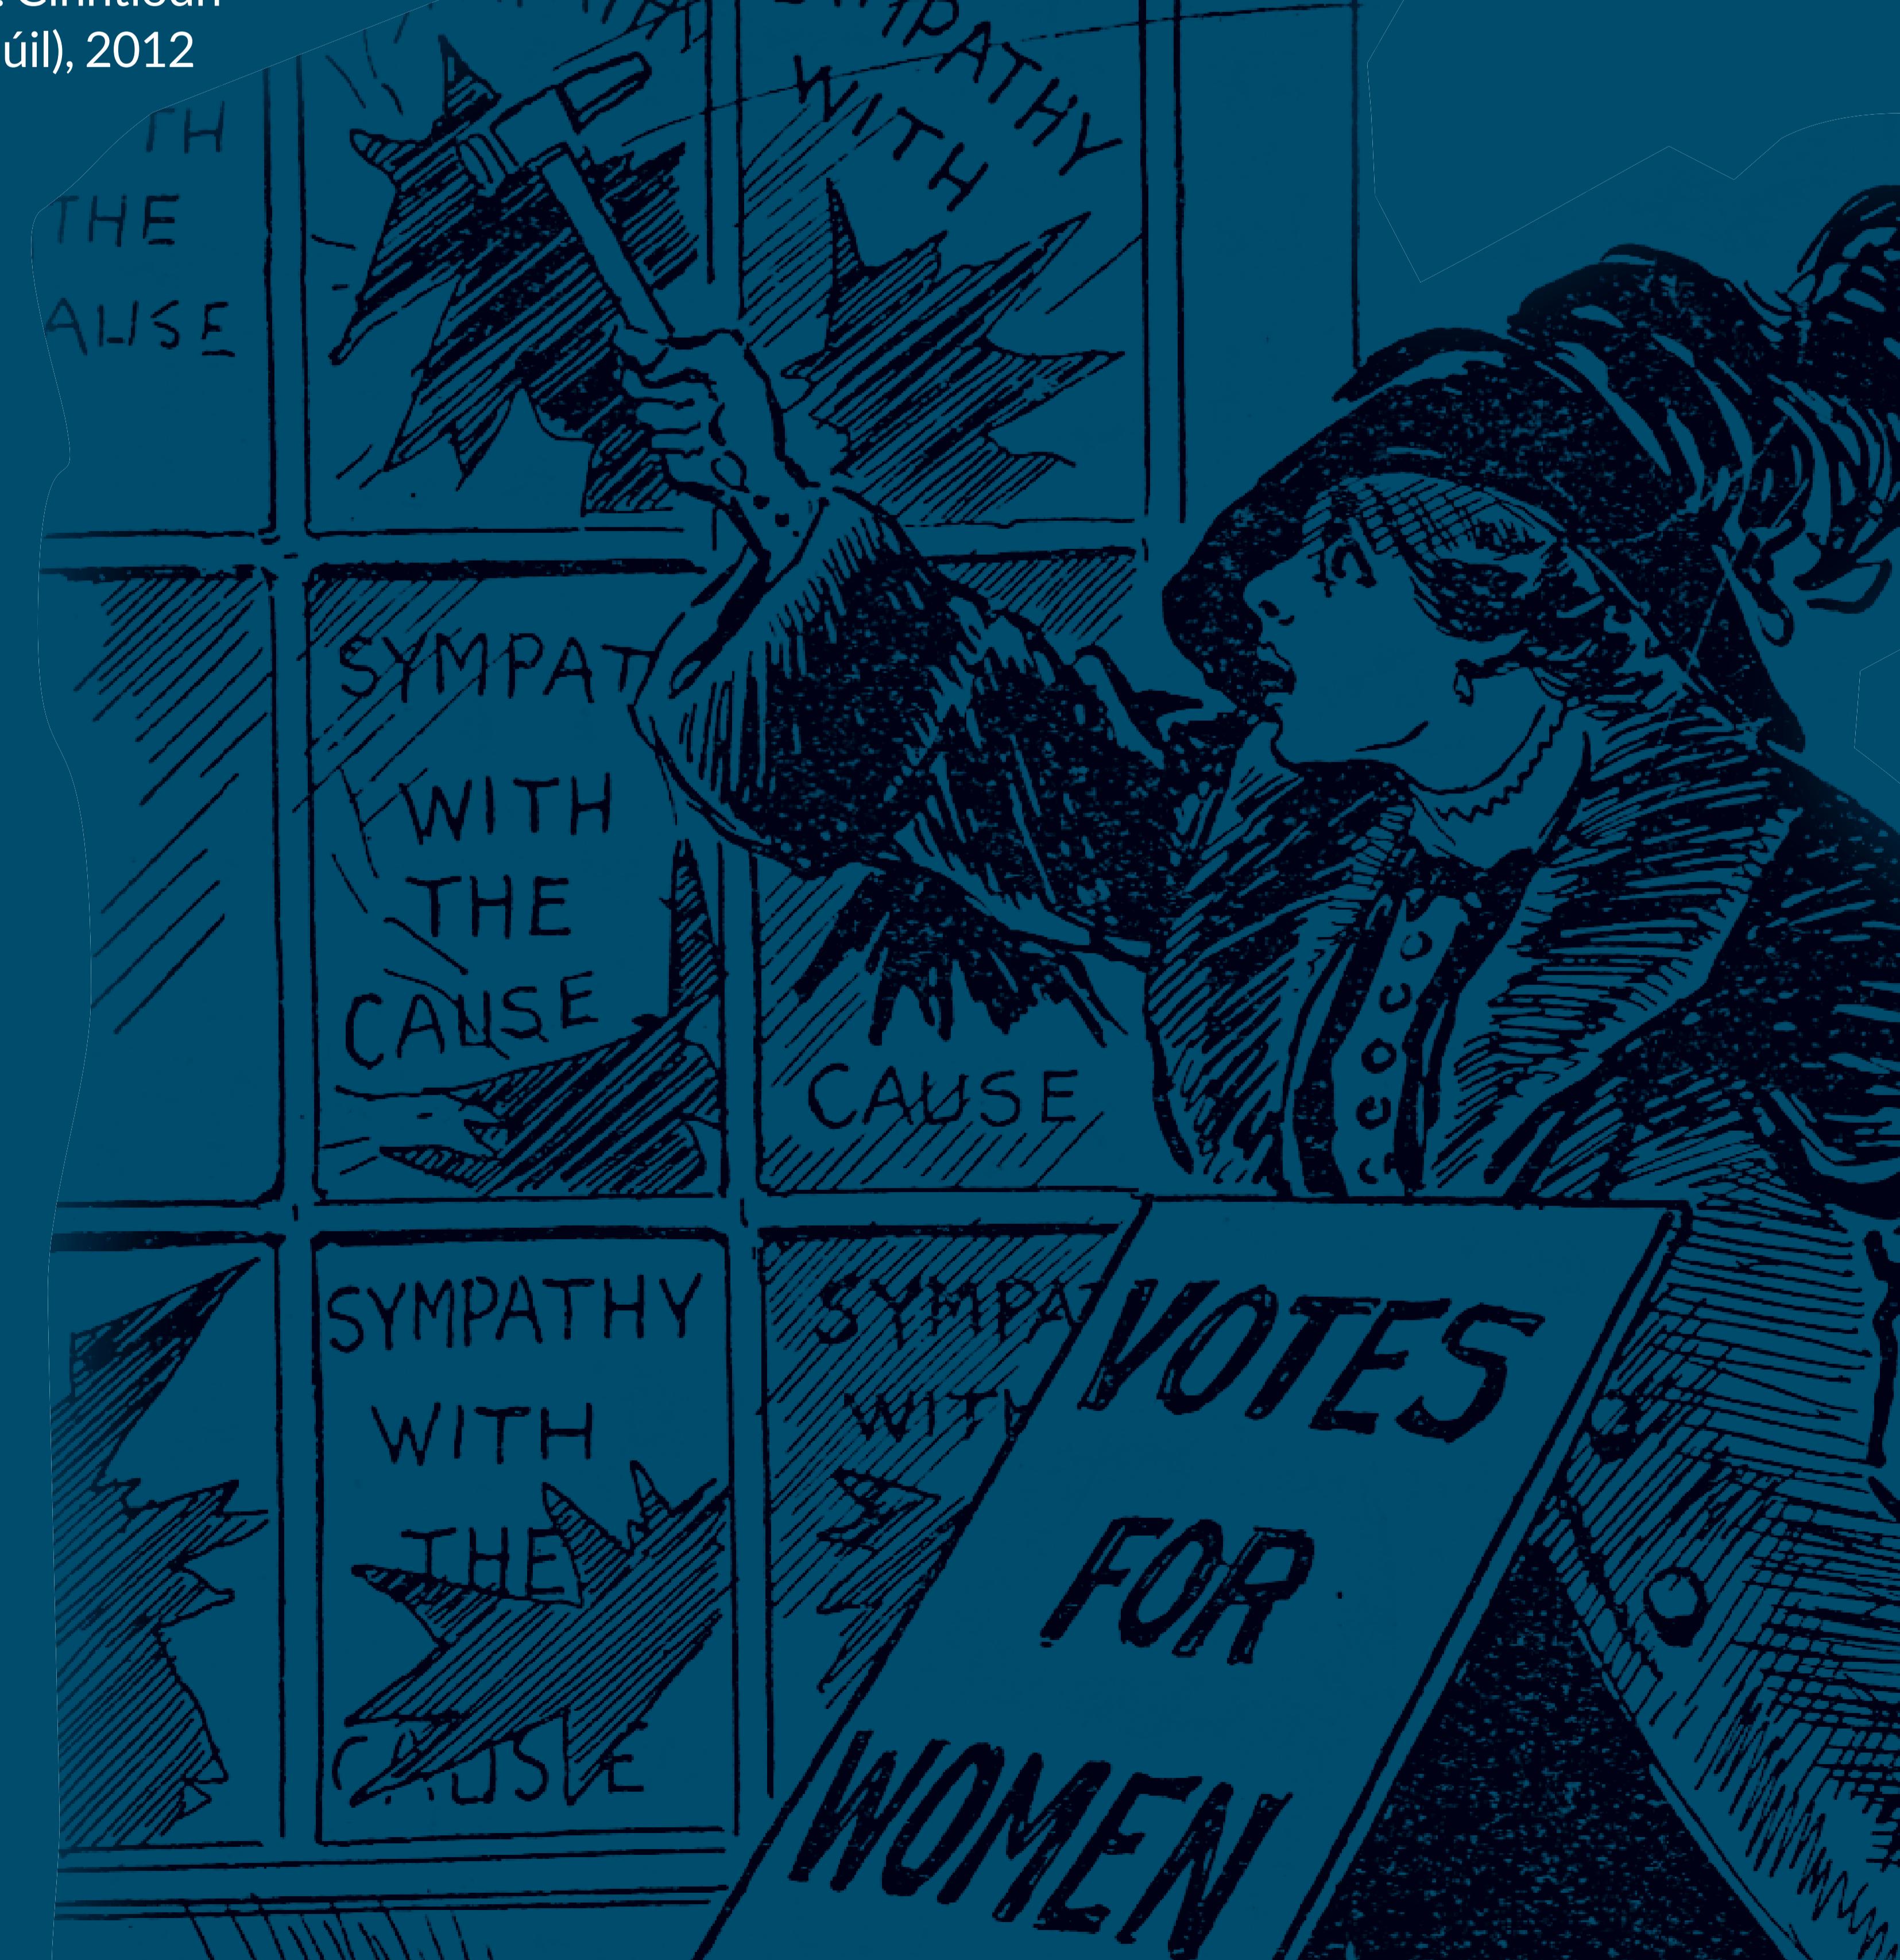

Ba í Sarah Cecilia Harrison an chéad bhean a toghadh chun Chomhairle Cathrach Bhaile Átha Cliath in 1912. In 1912 chomh maith, toghadh an Dr Mary Strangman, gníomháile eile, chun Bhardas Phort Láirge. Sna luathbhlianta, ba chomhaltaí de Chumann na mBan agus mná feachtasais páiseanta iad cuid de na mná a toghadh chun na n-údarás áitiúil. Poblachtach agus radacaí ba ea an Bhean Uasal Albinia Broderick, an chéad bhean a thoghadh ar Chomhairle Contae Chiarrá in 1920. Ba í Ellen Ryan ó Thuaim Chúil, Teach Munna, duine de na ban-phrísúnaigh is faide sa phrísúsún ó ré 1916, an chéad duine a toghadh chun Chomhairle Contae Loch Garman in 1928. Ba í Caitlín Bean Uí Chléirigh, baintreach mná Thomáis Uí Chléirigh (ceannaire Éirí Amach 1916 a cuireadh chun báis) an chéad bhean a ndearnadh Ard-Mhéara ar Bhaile Átha Cliath di in 1939.

Bhí líon na mban-chomhairleoirí íseal thar na blianta. Cinníodh leis na forálacha san Acht Toghcháin (Maoiniú Polaitiúil), 2012 go ndéantar níos mó ban a aimníú lena dtoghadh. Nothing for their Panes - Votes for Women (Dublin City Council Library and Archive)

Bhíodh a lán bailte in Éirinn a riart ag comhairle nó bardas buirge, a dhéileáladh le sláintíocht, soilsíú, bóithre agus taitneamhachtaí poiblí. Bhí cùig bhardas ríoga ann chomh maith: Baile Átha Cliath, Corcaigh, Gaillimh, Luimneach agus Port Láirge. Bhíodh bardais acu siúd a thugtaí faoi chairteacha ríoga.

Athruithe

Leis an Municipal Corporations (Ireland) Act, 1840 rinneadh 58 bardas agus 38 buirge a lánscoir. Leis an Towns Improvement (Ireland) Act, 1854 tugadh isteach coimisiún bhaile lenar bhain freagrachtaí leathnaithe maidir le sláintíocht agus feabhsuithe eile. Leis an Public Health (Ireland) Act, 1878 tugadh an stádas um údarás sláintíochta d'aontais dhlí na mbocht agus do choimisiúin bhaile.

Many towns in Ireland were administered by a borough council or corporation, which dealt with sanitation, lighting, roads and public amenities. There were also five royal boroughs: Dublin, Cork, Galway, Limerick and Waterford. These had corporations that were granted under royal charters.

Changes

The Municipal Corporations (Ireland) Act, 1840 dissolved 58 corporations and 38 boroughs. The Towns Improvement (Ireland) Act, 1854 introduced town commissions with expanded responsibilities for sanitation and other improvements. The Public Health (Ireland) Act, 1878 gave the poor law unions and town commissions the status of sanitary authorities.

The 1898 Act sought to rationalise the system of local government. Rural district councils were established and included towns that did not have urban sanitary authorities. Some town commissions became urban district councils. Further rationalisation was introduced under the Local Government Act, 1925 which abolished rural district councils. The most recent reforms came in 2014 when 80 town councils were abolished.

Administration and Finance Riarachán agus Airgeadas

Following the 1899 elections, county councils' monthly meetings were, for the first time, held in public, providing a firm basis for democracy. The new councils were financed by means of rates levied equally across all parts of the county, a fair determination which helped to gain support for the new system of local government.

Administration was needed to implement the council's decisions, and paid officials were recruited for this purpose. For instance, by 1900 Galway County Council had 21 paid officers – all men – headed by the county secretary and including a sheriff and sub-sheriff; 8 surveyors; 4 coroners; 4 clerks; and 2 solicitors. As local authorities evolved over the years and acquired more functions, additional staff were recruited; the 1963 Planning Act created a need for planners for example.

Administration in both city and county councils was consolidated under the City and County Management Acts, 1929-40, leading to a defined partnership between elected councillors and officials.

A primary function of county councils has been to build and maintain roads and associated infrastructure, such as piers and bridges. They also provide street lighting, road safety measures and the winter road gritting programme, together with a range of related ancillary services.

Laws enacted between 1868 and 1890 provided for the construction of local authority housing. It was originally the responsibility of borough councils and poor law guardians. Later, rural district councils and after them, county councils, took on the design, construction and maintenance of social houses. Councils also administer a range of government schemes providing mortgages, loans, grants and financial assistance to those with a variety of complex housing requirements.

Under the Motor Car Act, 1903 local authorities were given responsibility for motor vehicle registration, the administration of motor tax and the issuing of driver's licenses. With computerisation and legislative changes, they no longer have responsibility for the latter.

Since legislation in 1940, local authorities have provided essential fire-fighting, fire safety, fire prevention, building control and emergency services. Services range from dealing with simple chimney fires to major environmental disasters.

Rinneadh foráil i ndlíthe a achtaíodh idir 1868 agus 1890 i leith tithíocht údarás áitiúil a thógáil. Ba fhreagracht de chuid na gcomhairle bardais agus na bhardaigh dhlí na mbocáit é ar dtús. Níos déanaí, ghlac comhairlí ceantair thuaithe agus ina dhiaidh sin, comhairlí contae, freagracht as tithe sóisialta a dhearadh, a thógáil agus a chothabháil. Riarann comhairlí réimse scéimeanna rialtais chomh maith lena soláthraitear morgáistí, iasachtaí, deontais agus cúnamh airgeadais dóibh siúd ag a bhfuil riachtanais chasta éagsúla tithíochta.

Faoi Motor Car Act, 1903 tugadh an fhreagracht do na húdarás áitiúla as mótarfheithicí a chlárú, mótaracháin a riarr, agus ceadúnais tiománaithe a eisiúint. Leis an ríomhairí agus athruithe reachtacha, níl an fhreagracht acu a thuilleadh as ceadúnais tiománaithe a eisiúint.

Ó reachtaíocht in 1940, sholáthair údarás áitiúla seirbhísí riachtanacha comhraic dóiteáin, sábháilteachta dóiteáin, coisc dóiteáin, rialaithe foirgníochta agus seirbhísí éigeandála. Tá raon na seirbhísí ó bheith ag déileáil le tinte simplí simléir go mórtubastí comhshaoil.

Environment and Planning Comhshaol agus Pleanáil

Widespread disease led to the introduction of the Public Health (Ireland) Act, 1878. It aimed to improve living conditions, sanitation and water quality and required enormous effort from local authorities in the early years. The services it created have evolved into the sanitary and environmental services which we take for granted today.

Activities progressed from originally addressing water supply, sewerage, infectious diseases, nuisances, overcrowded houses and burial grounds to eventually include functions relating to monitoring water quality, water conservation, pollution control, waste management, recycling, beaches and water safety. Since 2014 the provision and maintenance of public water and waste water services have been transferred to the national water utility, Irish Water.

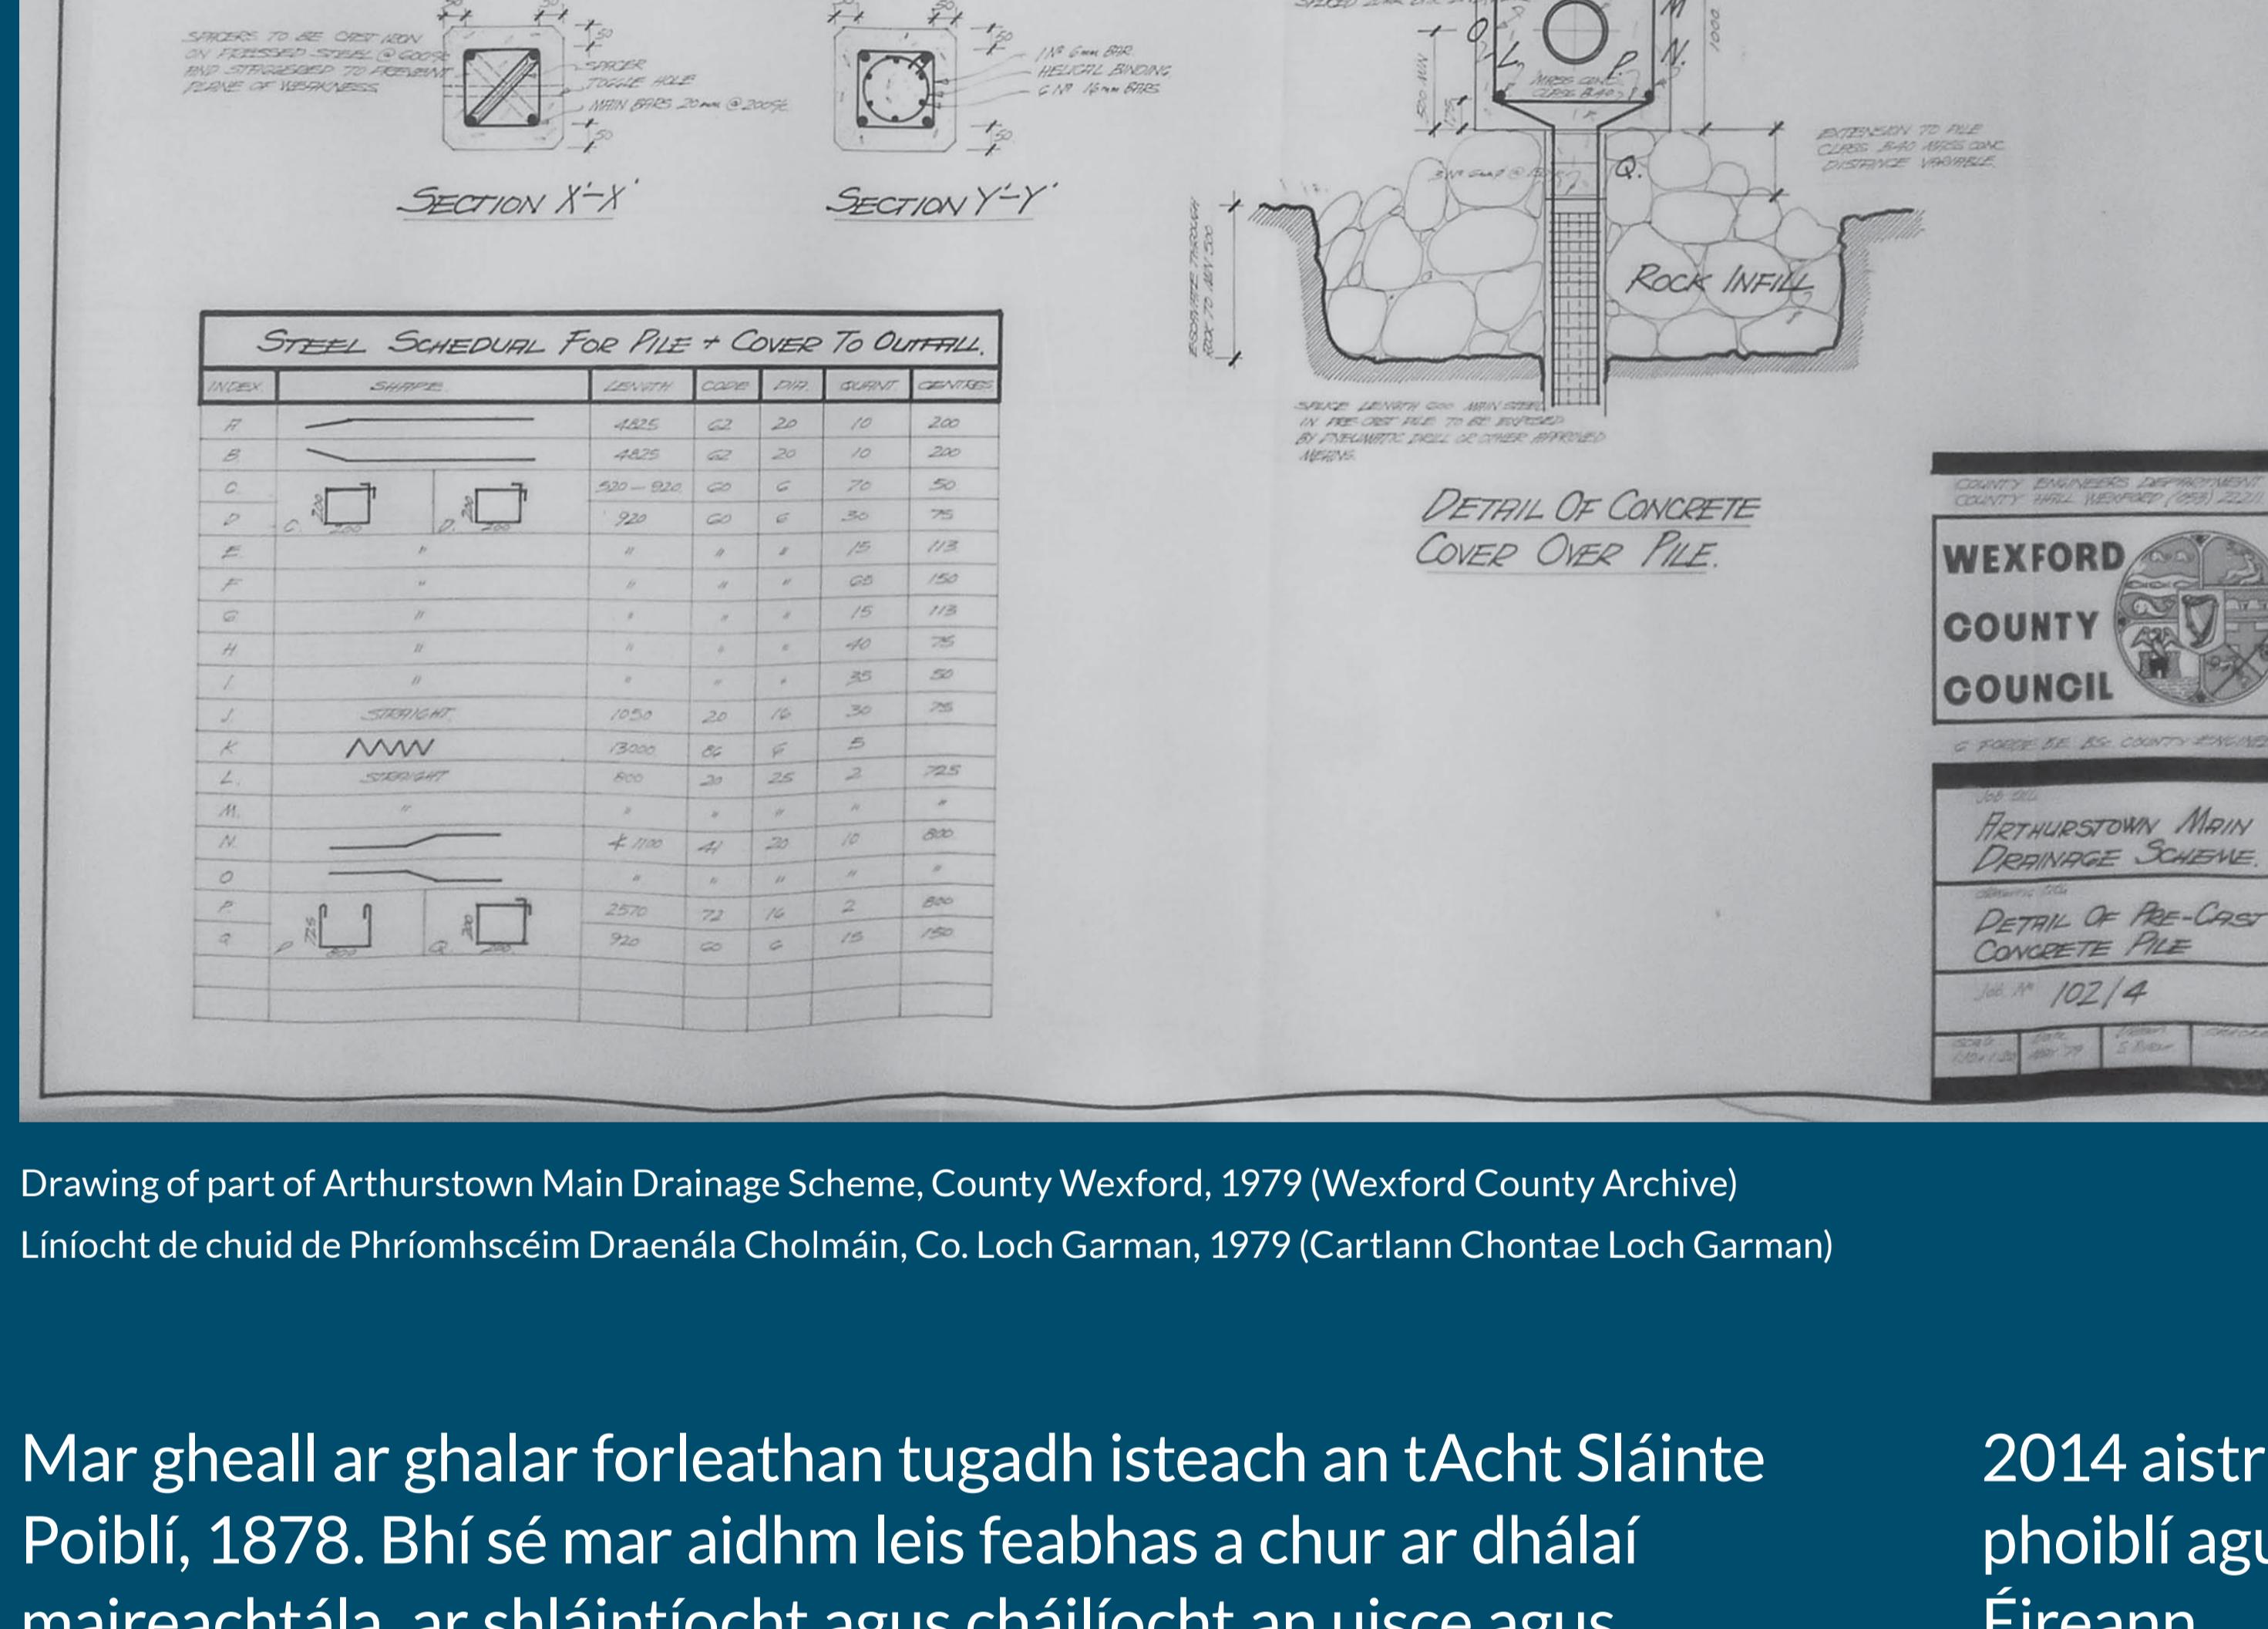

While several planning measures existed under the Public Health Acts and Housing Acts, the 1934 Town and Regional Planning Act was the first legislation dedicated solely to planning. Not considered a success, it was eventually replaced by the Planning and Development Act, 1963 and again by the Planning and Development Acts and Regulations 2000-2018. Planning has evolved from the early concerns of locating houses on busy roads to regulating complex and sustainable developments.

Mar gheall ar ghalar forleathan tugadh isteach an tAcht Sláinte Poiblí, 1878. Bhí sé mar aidhm leis feabhas a chur ar dháláí maireachtála, ar shláintíocht agus cháillíocht an uisce agus theastaigh iarracht mhór ó na húdaráis áitiúla sna luathbhlianta. Tháinig na seirbhísí a cruthaíodh leis chun cinn chuig na seirbhísí sláintíochta agus comhshaoil a ndéanaimid talamh slán dóibh inniu.

Chuaigh gníomhaíochtaí chun cinn ó aghaidh a thabhairt i dtosach ar sholáthar uisce, séarachas, galair ionfhabhtaíocha, nútseanna, tithe róphláidithe agus reilígí go dtí feidhmeanna a chur leis de réir a chéile i ndáil le monatóireacht a dhéanamh ar cháillíocht an uisce, caomhnú uisce, rialú truaillithe, bainistíocht dramhaíola, athchúrsáil, tránná agus sábháilteacht uisce. Ó

2014 aistíodh soláthar agus cothabháil na seirbhísí uisce phoiblí agus fuioluisce chuig an bhfóntas náisiúnta uisce, Uisce Éireann.

Cé go bhfuil roinnt beart pleanála ann faoi na hAchtanna Sláinte Poiblí agus Tithíochta, ba é Town and Regional Planning Act 1934 an chéad reacthaíocht a bhaint go sonrach le pleanáil.

Community, Enterprise, Cultural Services and Recreation

Pobal, Fiontraíocht, Seirbhísí Cultúrtha agus Caitheamh Aimsire

Economic Development

Local economic development has been an important role of local authorities since the 1960s. County Development Teams were created, initially covering all or parts of 13 counties, mostly in the west, and later spreading countrywide.

In the late 1990s, Better Local Government - A Programme for Change led to a radical overhaul of structures, including the establishment of Community and Enterprise directorates within local authorities. Under the Local Government Reform Act 2014, County Enterprise Boards were replaced by Local Enterprise Offices within local authorities.

Cultural Services and Recreation

Councils provide a range of cultural services. Public libraries were first established under legislation of 1855. The post of Arts Officer was created in 1985. Heritage Officers, first appointed in 1999, promote all aspects of heritage within their areas. Most local archives services have been established since it became mandatory for local authorities to ensure the proper preservation and management of their archives under the Local Government Act of 1994.

There are local authority museums in many counties. Councils also provide parks, swimming pools, playgrounds and other amenities.

material as might be required for future reference. The question of what is to be preserved is very important in modern archives because of the bulk of the records.

In other countries, particularly the Commonwealth countries, the State controls the whole of the nation's archive. There are generally one or more national archive repositories similar to our own Public Record Office, preserving the records of the Government departments. In addition to these there are the local repositories which preserve all other civic archives, down to those of the smallest local government authority.

The Galway County Council has already realized the importance of preserving their own records, and had asked me to speak at this Committee to allow them to sort out a huge accumulation of material - to make a selection of what is important. This has been done and many items of real value have been saved. (One has unfortunately to record that during the last war material of great value was used for waste paper).

Serving Local Communities Ag Freastal ar Phobail Áitiúla

At local level, councils led Ireland 2016, which commemorated the centenary of the Easter Rising. Central to its success were consultation and partnerships with community and voluntary organisations. Local authorities also administered a grant scheme which provided funding for community projects. To build on the achievements of Ireland 2016, Creative Ireland 2017-2022 was established as a national programme promoting creativity, the arts and heritage, with councils again having the leading role. Likewise, they are co-ordinating the Decade of Centenaries, which began in 2013.

Serving Communities Ag Freastal ar Phobail

Local government has evolved remarkably since 1899. While most functions remain, some, such as water, have been transferred to other agencies or are now shared. Local authorities have also acquired new responsibilities. This is especially the case in the areas of Community and Enterprise and Cultural Services. Councils support the development of businesses in several ways. They also work with local communities in creating and maintaining amenities and visitor attractions. They actively facilitate community and voluntary bodies through Public Participation Networks.

Programmes such as Peace IV and Interreg are unique initiatives of the European Union designed to support peace and reconciliation. Various services within local authorities, particularly in border counties, have been involved in such EU-funded projects for over 20 years.
